ACCUSED OF BAD FAITH.

Sherman Regains Confidence in His Chances

AND HIS FORCES SOLID AGAIN

The Latest Speculation and Gossip.

CHICAGO, June 24.-[Special.]-The situation is even in a worse condition than on yesterday, when the convention adjourned without a ballot. Disagreement reigns supreme.

The friends of each candidate say they will never desert their choice. The Illinois, Indiana and Ohio delegations have been in session today, and have determined to keep their candidates before the convention and to stick to them to the last. Iowa and Michigan are slightly wavering today, but will remain staunch on the first and second ballots tomorrow. It is safe to predict that the convention will again fail to agree tomorrow. There is really hardly a chance of a nominee being se-and that the probability is that there will be delays until Wednesday. It is a bitter battle, the scars of which will not be healed during the campain, unless some dark horse is in for nomination. The Blaine men are strong. They are fighting heroically for victory, but the friends of both Sherman and Harrison are their enemies. Blaine, they say, shall not, under any circumstances, receive the nomina-tion, but both Shermrn and Harrison are practically out of the race. Gresham was KILLED BY INGERSOLL'S SPEECH, and should he be withdrawn tomorrow, his forces will in all probability go to Allison, for one ballot, and then to Blaine.

They are for anybody in preference to Harrison. As the Sherman men, with the excep-tion of Ohioans, are bitterly opposed to both Blaine and Gresham, they will probably make a break for Harrison after the second or third ballot tomorrow, and will use their every effort to defeat the Blaine aspirations. The delegates at this writing are truly in a muddle, and many do not know which way to turn. The

THE BITTEREST EVER WAGED over a party nomination, and the effects of it will not soon wear off. But it is just what the democrats wanted. It makes victory for Cleveland and Thurman more certain than ever. It matters not who the republican party nominates, defeat is theirs. This internal strife has already practically secured victory for their opponents-the democratic party.

WHO WILL HE BE? The question now agitating the minds of the country, "who will be the nominee?" is as much undecided now as it was the first day the convention met. Although the Blaine men are fighting bravely, and outwardly appear confident, there is with them a deep internal feeling that they have failed, and their second choice is McKinley, of Ohio. The California delegation, the originators of the Blaine boom, today for the first time expressed themselves for a second choice, Major William McKinley. His name has been in many mouths today and he will andoubtly loom up in tomorrow's session with a large vote. He cannot, however, it is said, get a solid delegation from his own state, Ohio, and this will operate against his chances of success. Mc-Kinley has made a fine impression in the con-vention, and his declinations of any intendedhonor in the way of complimentary votes on Saturday, has won him many friends. The editorial in the New York Express this morn ing, reproduced in the papers here, strongly advocating him as a compromise man, has had much effect with the various delegations, and it might be said in truth that McKinley is

THE PAVORITE AS A COMPROMISE MAN. New York is for Blaine, Depew has expressed himself for the plumed knight, and is of the opinion he will undoubtedly be the nominee but should he fail, which now seems more than likely, the reigning opinion is that the fortu-nate one will be McKinley, of Ohio. Both Emmons and Walker Blaine, sons of the man from Maine, are here, and say their fath-er will not accept the nomination under any circumstances. However, his friends claim that he will accept it should it be unanimous. But from the present outlook it seems that it cannot under any circumstances be made unanimously, and everything now points to either McKinley or some one not mentioned in the convention.

The crowd has thinned out considerably and the streets seemed deserted today in comparison with the crowds of last week. LOOKING OVER THE FIELD.

The Candidates Awaking to Blaine's

Duplicity. CHICAGO, June 24 .- The presidential situation is practically unchanged. Today has brought only a clearer understanding of the conditions under which this remarkable contest is to be fought out. Gradually it has dawned upon the conventiou that certain men, pretending to repre-sent Blaine, have determined to

of any other candidate, in order to make Blaine's nomination a possibility. Their aim has been to kill off one candidate after another, till none of the original aspirants remained. This programme has been repeatedly described in these dispatches, but the convention, as a whole, has just awakened to a full realization of the negative influence which has all along prevented the crystalization of sentiment and a The friends of all the other candidates are indigeant that the convention should be thus dominated by an influence which, without an avowed candidate of its own, attempts, first, to push sincere candidates to the front and then defeat them. So much feeling has developed on this score that various cablegrams have been sent to Blaine, besides those which he is supposed to receive from Elkius and Phelps. In these dispatches the actual condition of affairs here has been fully described, and the bad feeling and probable demoralization of the party if his representatives are permitted to continue their tactics, is carefully pointed out. There is a a general belief that some dispatch from Blaine will be read to the convention to-morrow, probably one requesting his friends to refrain from voting for him.

THE CLAIRE COUP. Further light was thrown today upon the attempted coup in Blaine's interest at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It is true, as was telegraphed last night, that a plan had been formulated to push Blaine's name to the front on the first or second ballot. Alabama was to lead the way and be followed by all the Blaine's parts. followed by all the Blaine states in succession, New York joining in with fifty votes and the Blaine men in Pennsylvania leaving the lead-ership of Quay and returning to their first love. Even Ohio, led by Governor Foraker, who wants the second place on the ticket, was to contribute twenty or twenty-five votes to the grand column. All this is known, but it is not known why the scheme was abandoned. A Chicago man, who has been empowered to speak for Blaine, and who is a man of good judgment and not a politician, was called in to a conference of the Blaine leaders just before the meeting of the convention. He was informed of the plan in hand, and was shown a list of 423 sure and reliable Blaine delegates, or an assured majority of the whole convention. This man looked over the list, saw that it comprised the names of delegates who are here ostensibly for other candidates, and at once gave his dictum as follows:

"This thing must come to a stop," "Mr. Blaine cannot take this nemination by riding over the rights of any of the men now in the field. He regards them all as his friends, and knows they have entered this contest in good faith, believing him to be out by his own act. You propose to draw delegates from the supporters of these men to undermine them, and defeat them. If you nominate him in this way, a cablegram will be received from him in twenty minutes declining the nomination, and you will then be in a worse predica ment than ever. This thing must be stopped.' Reluctantly Elkins and his colleagues conented to postpone the Blaine campaign, and the friends of all the candidates, except Harison, joined the Blaine men in forcing an adjournment till Monday morning.

HOW THE CANDIDATES STAND. Feeling Among the Delegates Which May Result Against Blaine.

CHICAGO, June 24.—The situation at his hour may be described as follows: In the convention to-morrow all the candiates will stand firm. There are no withdrawals. The conference of anti-Blaine men has agreed not to present any candidates for the support of the opposition. Indeed, it is unable to agree upon a candidate. There is a deep feeling on all sides that the "Blaine or bust" programme is not sanctioned by Blaine himself. The plan of the opposition, therefore, is simply to stand firm and wait for Blaine himself to speak, or for his assured representatives to force the issue. The feeling is that if Blaine does not settle the matter the convention will have to settle it, and that the convention cannot go nonestly and sincerely about the business of choosing a leader as long as this Blaine spectre hangs over it. THE ELKINS PROGRAMME is to demonstrate to the convention that none of the candidates now in the field can be nominated. When they are all out of the way, or a dark horse is sprung on the convention, an effort will be made to nominate Blaine.

But here are the facts which the convention will face tomorrow morning: The candidates whom Elkins professed to have killed refuse to be buried. Every one of them is still in the race. They are in for the purpose of winning, if possible, and determined at all hazards to prevent the nomination of Blaine. Tomorrow the balloting is likely to show a mere repetition of the ballots of Saturday. While these other candidates are in the field, Elkins will not now dare carry out his programme of stampeding tatively from Blaine. Thus a deadlock will appear, andunless BLAINE CUTS THE KNOT and sets the convention free to act upon its own responsibilities, uninterfered with by a cabal of negative leaders, the convention may sit for several days without reaching a solution of the extraordinary difficulties by which it is now surrounded.

HOW WOULD MCKINLEY DO? Looking Over the Pasture for Dark

Horses.
Chicago, June 24.—Little by little light comes in upon this phenomenal situation. During the last few days there has been much talk of McKinley as a dark horse. His name has been mentioned with favor in many places Delegates have voted for him in the convention. There is no doubt that McKinley has made a fine impression, and that he is a popular man on his own account, but it has been noticed that the men who were doing all in their power to press him to the front, were Blaine men. It was a Blaine delegate who first voted for him, and on the succeeding roll calls, other Blaine delegates followed their example. Furthermore, in the conference of candidates, Blaine influence has been exerted in favor of adopting McKinley as the leader of the opposition forces. All the anti-Blaine men in the convention are concentrating their strength upon him. This effort to induce all the other candidates to withdraw, and to bring McKinley forward as a dark horse,

AS A BLAINE SCHEME. Just as soon as the present avowed candidates leave the field, and a dark horse takes their place, Blaine will be nominated. The logic of this is easily perceived. Blaine cannot, in honor, take this nomination if it shall be secured by running over the candidates who entered the field, and did the best they could for themselves; but if these candidates voluntarily withdraw, and a dark horse takes their place, no obligation rests upon Blaine as to the new comer who has not been a candidate, and whose friends have put out no efforts in his behalf on the supposition that Blaine was out of the way. An effort has also been made by the Blaine people to get Foraker to stand as a dark horse, and

FORAKER HAS BEEN WILLING ENOUGH to do it and has posed before the convention with that purpose in view, on the distinct understanding that if the anti-Blaine influence could be induced to rally about him, Blaine was to beat him out, the vice-presidency being his reward. As a proof that Foraker has played Sherman false, Fred Mussey quotes him

"I have been faithful and true to Mr. Shemman. I have strained every nerve in his be-half and stood by him until I feel the case is hopeless. I cannot be accused of unfaithfulness or treachery under these circumstances.

Now, I believe I am honorably absolved and I am for Blaine henceforth. I shall vote for him next Monday and the main part of the Ohio delegation wall vote with me, if not all. I believe I should try to faithfully represent the sentiment of the delegation, and that I am

An effort has also been made to play upon the ambition of McKin'ey, but without success. McKinley has been loyal to Sherman. An effort is also being made to bring Cullom forward as a dark horse, thus destroying Gresham, and in due time a similar effort may be mad to undermine Harrison by playing upon the ambition of ex-Governor Porter PLAYING AGAINST SHERMAN.

Blaine Feels Justified in Kniffing the Ohio
Refrigerator.
CHICAGO, June 24.—The arti-Blaine, leaders are not in ignorance of these adroit tactics.

At one moment Saturday there was some pros pect of the McKinley programme succeeding, and John Sherman had really given the Ohio delegation a release from the obligation to himself and permission to do what it should seem best. The Blaine men were fanning the McKinley blaze as best they could in secret, OVER PLAYED THE GAME and were detected. Then Sherman withdrew his withdrawal. His representatives here posi-tively denied that he had thought of retiring from the race, and the senator himself is interviewed to the same effect in Washington.

Another Elkins scheme is to force the opportunity sition to unite on Sherman. This is in theory that Blaine could safely take the nomination away from Sherman, for the reason that the Ohio senator was a can-didate before Blaine's first letter of withdrawal was written, as is witnessed by his demand for the presidential indorsement of the Ohio state convention of 1887. Therefore Blaine is under no such obligations to Sherman as to the candidates who had entered the field on the belief that Blaine was out. It is true that the Blaine men are in the majority in the convention, but many of these Blaine delegates are attached to other candidates. If these other candidates refuse to get out of the way, and they are now refusing to do so, it is not easy to see how Blaine can be nominated, or, if nominated, how he can accept.

RESOLVED INTO A DEADLOCK The situation, therefore, is in a deadlock, with no good feeling prevailing, and powerful ressure being brought to bear on Blaine by cable to solve the great problem in so far as final word of his can do so. The understand-ing Blaine's friends have is that he wants the nomination if it can be secured in a proper way. In the present temper of the supporters of the various candidates, his nomination by consent, or as a result of the general withdrawal is an impossibility. The Blaine programme, being to deadlock the convention, kill off other candidates and weary supporters, the opposition has adopted precisely the same tac-

ICELANDIC TO THE LAST. John Sherman Still in the Race, and to Stay.

WASHINGTON, June 24 .- At half past ten o'clock this morning, a reporter of the Asso-ciated Press called upon Senator Sherman, and probably the nominee. This gentleman, how-informed him of the conflicting ramors for ever, said that New York's agreement to go to specting himself from Chicago.
"I have not withdrawn," he said, "either

CHICAGO, June 24.—At a caucus of the Alabama delegation this afternoon, Ben Butterworth was present. He said Sherman's strength was not diminishing. He would have more votes tomorrow than he had Friday ar Saturday. He stated forcibly the reasons why the southern delegates should support the senator, and asked the delegates to unite for him. Before Butterworth was done, Logan H. Roots, of Arkansas, knocked on the caucus room door. He heard the conclusion of Butterworth's speech, and then made one him self. The WHOLE DRIFT WAS FOR BLAINE. It not being deemed expedient, however, to vote for him, and the delegates having united on Alger, Roots retired and George W. Par-sons, instructed for Sherman, but personally for Blaine, moved that the delegation unite on Sherman for the first ballot tomorrow, and then if it seemed apparent that Sherman could not be nominated, to declare for Blaine and give him twenty votes. Arkansas, he said, would follow with 14 and California with 16 more. The initiation taken by Alabama would sweep the convention for Blaine. Such a storm of f protest was raised at this, that Mr. Parsons vithdrew his motion. withdrew his motion.

John D. Hardy, who has been voting for Alger, but who desires, for the prestige of the state, to unite the delegation, moved to unite it for Sherman. Half the delegates objected. The motion was withdrawn. The meeting ended as a half dozen have, without any change in the position of the delegates. Alabana gave one yets for Blaine vesterday. change in the position of the delegates. Alabama gave one vote for Blaine yesterday. Four will probably be given for him tomorrow. Parsons thinks eight votes will be for Blaine at an appropriate time.

NO CONCLUSION TODAY.

The Deadlock May Continue for a Week Longer.
Chicago, June 24.—The sub-committee to look over the field, and, if possible, to recommend a ticket which would meet with the approval of all the factions, presented the following report to the conference committee this

"The members of the special committee appointed by the conference do not believe it udicious, at this time, to suggest a ticket for submission to the general conference. They further recommend that a meeting of the con-ference committee be held Monday morning." The report wasadopted unanimously, without much discussions, and the conference adourned to meet again to-morrow evening.

Chauncey J. Filley, who is a member of the ommittee, said that he had no hope of a conclusion being reached by the convention orrow. All of the candidates and their friends, he said, were manifesting a disposition to stand by their guns, and the fight would open to-morrow morning on the same old lines.

The New Yorkers during the day decided to stick to Harrison, and they will vote for him on the first ballot. Secretary of State Griffith, the Harrison leader, told the associated press representative this evening that he had been notified by the New Yorkers that they would give Harrison on the first bollet tomorrow five vetes in addition to fifty-eight for him from New York yesterday.

GOT THEIR SECOND WIND. The Sherman Forces Ready for Another

trying to do so. Suppose I stood by Mr. Sherman against the opinion of other members of the delegation; that would not do. I do not believe there is any chance for Sherman's nomination. That fact is patent to every one, and therefore I look about for the next best man to win, and I believe Mr. Blaine is the only man left us."

prospect of tomorrow's session of the convention Nothing definite can, as yet, be learned from any of them, but it is known that they have repaired all the broken fences in the Ohio delegation, and that the latter will vote for Sherman's man again tomorrow. Governor Foraker, who said that there would be a break in the Ohio delegation, says now that it will be unanimous delegation, says now that it will be unanimous for Sherman. It is said in certain quarters that the New York delegation will vote for

> TELEGRAMS FROM JOHN. Senator Sherman's friends have been inclined to indicate that his nomination tomorrow is not only a possibility but a probability. Telegrams have passed today between the sen-ator and his managers here, to the effect that he is not only not out of the fight, but that he has reason to believe he will be the nominee of the convention. Senator Sherman has wired his friends that he is in the race to stay, that he would withdraw in favor of no one. He said that Blaine was pledged to him not to be a candidate, and the use of his name is unauthorized, and that the attempt to force Blaine upon the convention was a gross abuse of confidence. Senator Sherman contends, in his dispatches here, that Blaine could only be nominated by the convention in a square issue between Blaine and himself and the other candidates, and not as the unanimous choice of the body. There is no middle course, and Blaine's friends must come out, make their fight for him as against the other candidates, and take his chances, or he must go down in history as

> These dispatches were shown Mr. Elkins and others of the leaders of the Blaine forces, and were thrown down to him as a square challenge. The messages created something of a sensation, and have given spice to the situation, so far as the Sherman candidacy is con-cerned, which it did not pessess before this morning. The Blaine managers appealed to Governor Foraker, who they thought had the vice presidential bee in his bonnet, to with-draw from Sherman and join the Blaine programme. The governor said that he was not in position just now to agree to this and that they must await further developments.
> This was the situation which Quay, of Pennsyl > vania, and other Sherman men had to meet this p. m. Quay at once set to seek a combination for a basis of Sherman's candidacy for the anti Blaine forces in New York and other states. He represented to his friends in the Pennsylvania delegation that there was not only a chance left for Sherman, but convinced McManes and other anti Blaine people from that state that Sherman was the only man who could defeat Blaine's nomination, but that his nomination tomorrow on the second ballot was almost certain. Quay sent to these people that 55 votes been promised him at conference this afternoon from New York, and that the entire vote from Wisconsin would join in the movement. Quay has succeeded apparently by these statements in getting fifty-five of the Pennsylvania delegation to hold on to Sherman for two ballots, at least, tomorrow, and although no caucus of the delegation can be held until tomorrow, McManes said Quay holds the state's vote, and that he expects Sherman's nomination. One of the delegates at large from Pennsylvania tonight said the Sherman boom had been rehabilitated, and Sherman was conditional, and unless there was a very hopeful condition of affairs when New York was called, there might not be any Sherman votes there. A very prominent Philadelphia delegate, who expects to go with Quay in the Sherman movement for one ballot at leats, said:

"Quay has two more votes from Pennsylvania for Sherman upon a promise of material help elsewhere. But I do not think the Pennsylvania delegation can be held for Sherman lon-

A MIDNIGHT RUMOR

That a Cablegram Has been Received From CHICAGO, June 24.—The rumor that a ca-blegram had been read from Blaine in the meeting of Blaine men, or that one had been received from him, could not be confirmed by any one of the half dozen gentlemen who emerged from the meeting up to 12:15. One of the gentlemen intimated that the meeting was for the purpose of affecting an organization of Blaine's friends to be prepared for any emergency that might arise in the convention omorrow. There has been a counting of votes, and it was found that the number that could be depended upon was not over four hundred and fifty. It had been supposed by the Blaine managers that the number was five hundred and eighty, but the hundred and thirty additional are not in position under the present conditions of affairs, to commit them selves unreservedly to Blaine. Among those present at the meeting were S. B. Elkins, B. J. Kerens, B. B. Fossenden, C. A. Beuteile, John S. Wise, B. F. Jones, J. B. Manley and M. H. Devenny. The meeting was presided

Chicago, June 24.—The following special, dated yesterday, is printed here:

Melrose, Scotland, June 22, 4:30 p. m.—The Carnegie-Biaine party has just arrived here and are having tea at the romantic place much visited by strangers. A crowd of dusty American travellers, including one bridal couple, was at the entrance to the Abbey hotel. They did faint cheering as the coach came up. In return Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Blaine smiled faintly. Mr. Blaine is not loooking so well. He is very pale and seemed tired. He enjoyed a day, however, of fine weather. There was much sun and many steep hills, which made the coaching exciting and broke the monotony of the journey. On the way from Jedburgh here, at Dryburgh abbey, where the party had lunch, he sat on the grass and west over the tomb of Sir Walter Scott and quoted his peetry. Mr. Blaine knew it all ha he re

ALL IN BED BUT BLAINE.

11 p, m.—1t is still almost light enough to read in the streets—a peculiarity of Scotland at this time of year—and nearly all of the Carnegie party are in bed despairing of seeing the abbey by moonlight. Mr. Blaine, however, is still up, waiting for further news from the Chicago convention. He has received from me the result of the first three ballots and the news of the adjournment.

BLAINE WILL WIRE HIS ACCEPTANCE.

If some one class is mamed, he will wire congratulations. He is deeply interested, but less excited, apparently, than the rest of his family. Mrs. Blaine is extremely nervous, and it is declared she will not hear the details; it reminded her of what she went through four years ago.

minded her of what she went through four years ago.

Blaine's bedroom window looks out on Melrose abbey, a picturesque and soothing sight. From it he can see the stone which marks the spot where Robert Bruce's heart lies buried. He can also see, just at this particular moment, two ladies welking in the rain. They are Miss Annie Brown and Miss Ella Wells, of 71 Fifth avenue, New York, who are waiting with a party of friends for the moonlight to gild things, and who, in the interval, have been assuring their acquaintances that Mr. Blaine is bound to be nominated, because friends of theirs went to Chicago to see about t.

At the jetty at the mouth of the bay, a tug with a tow was met. The tug gave the whistle and the Olivette answered, signifying that the latter would take port side. The two passed all right, and afterward William Holzhaver, the pilot, and part owner of the Olivette, surrendered the wheel to a deck hand named Danver It being flood tide the jetty was covered with water, Danver had deck hand named Danver It being flood tide the jetty was covered with water. Danver had scarcely got his bearings when he heard a sharp, grating sound, and realizing he was on the jetty, stopped the engine. Several of the male passengers jumped over on the jetty, and in doing so the boat lurched and slid off into deep water. The girls then made a run for the side of the boat. This caused her to heel over suddenly, and in a second she turned bottom side up. The air was immediately filled with screams for help from a score of for sons struggling for their lives in the water. The cries were heard at Greenville, and other points on the bay, and rescuers soon went to the seene of the accident, but when the beat arrived it was found six of the party, five ladies and one gentleman, had been swept away and drowned.

THE WEATHER BULLETIN:

The Week's Report Favorable to the Grow-ing Crops. Mashington, June 24.—The weather crop bulletin, issued by the signal office, says the weather daring the past week in the grain regions of the northwest has been generally favorable to the growing crops, and conditions have improved in the upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys and in Michigan, although heavy local rains in Missouri are reported to have injured wheat and delayed harvesting. An excess of rain is reported from Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi, which has been unfavorable to the cotton crop. In the west portion of the cotton region less rain and clear weather would doubtless benefit the growing crops, while the east portion of the cotton region less rains and clear weather would doubtless benefit the growing crops, while the east portion of the cotton region. weather would doubtless benefit the growing crops, while the east portion of the cotton region, including Alabama, North Carolina and South Carolina, the weather has been favorable for all crops. Harvesting is in progress in Tennessee and Kentucky, where the weather conditions have been favorable for wheat and corn but unfavorable for grass.

The Intriques of the Court - Events the Summer-Sensational Die-closures, Etc. NEW YORK, June 24.-The New York associated press has published a Berlin letter, giv-ing the latest details in court circles. The opening of the reichstag on Monday morning promises to be a magnificent function, worthy of the supreme importance of the occasion. The emperor has personally revised the programme, and has given directions for an elaborate ceremonial, such as for splendor and brilliancy has not attended the opening of the reichstag since the first session of that body in March, 1871. Usually a state parade has been avoided, and even when the emperor was present the ceremony was of the simplest character. The preparations for Monday show that it is the intention of the new ways to in the preparations. is the intention of the new imperor to inaugurate the first parliamentary session of his reign the first parliamentary session of his reign with full imperial splendor, equal in pomp to the memorable opening of the first reichstag. All of the German federal princes have been invited to attend. The regent of Bavaria, the king of Saxony, Prince William of Wurtemburg and the gran I dukes of Baden and Hesselave arrived and will be present.

The ceremony takes place in the historic white hail of the old castle. The orders of the emperor direct that the divine service, which is usually held for Protestant members in the cathedral, be given in the court chapel attached to the castle. After the service the emperor will enter the hall in full state, preceded by the chief court officials, the vice grand senechal and the masters of ceremony, and followed by the bearers of the imperial insignia, which will be laid on tabourets on each side of the throne. will come the emperor, surrounded by the reigning federal sovereign princes of the royal blood and members of the families of the reigning federal princes.

The emperor having taken his seat on the throne, the federal princes and hereditary princes will station themselves on the dais on the right side of the emperor, and the princes of the blood and other princes to the left.

The empress will proceed to the hall from the court chapel, and will be seated on the dais before the emperor. When the members of the imperial family are placed, the senior member of the reichstag, probably Count Von Moltke, will propose three cheers for the emperor. Thereupon Bismarck will prosent to the emperor the manuscript of the speech from the throne, and the emperor, after uncovering, will proceed to read it.

According to the semi-official forecast of the speech the emperor will explicitly declare his desire to pursue a peace policy, and will say that, conscious of the responsibilities of his position, he will follow in the footsteps of his grandiather and father and devote his life to the welfare of his people, trusting to maintain the unity of Germany without recourse to arms.

identified with Germany, will be maintained to its full integrity.

After the ceremony a court dinner will be given, at which all of the royalties and the leading diplomats will be present. The session of the reichstag will not last beyond Saturday.

The opening of the landtag on Wednesday will also be celebrated with considerable pompin the white hall, where the emperor, in the presence of members of both chambers, will take the eath to uphold the Prussian constitution.

A PEACE ADDRESS FOR THE PULPITS.
Public confidence in the pacific desires ger than two ballots, and possibly not so long.

There will be a break for Blaine or McKinley very promptly unless Quay shows us that he has made a successful deal. We doubt it, but are willing to give him the chance."

A MIDNIGHT ELIMON great work of peace unconcerned by the splendor of the great deeds that have made the history of Germany, desiring to be satisfied if his reign were beneficent to the German nation and useful to the country and a blessing to the emperor. The address further says: "God did not permit him to realize altogether the thoughts and principles that had sliently ripened in his mind, but now that he has left us his sons, James and William, on one side, and Henry Carney and his sons, Henry, John and Allen, on the other. Henry Carney asserts that William Vester has ruined his daughter, and the row started about tirat. The three Carneys met William Vester and proceeded to do him up. About the time he was done up, including a little carving, James, Jr., came along and was duly beaten and thrashed. Old man Vester came along with a gun, but was ordered to stop or die. He stopped, but afterwards came to town and took out warrants against the whole Carney family and had them arrested.

DEAD AT LAST.

the date on which William I was crowned in 1861.

The period of court mourning for Emperor Frederick expires the middle of September, about the same time the autumn military maneuvers will be opened on an extensive iscale, culminating in fetes at Konigsberg in celebration of the occasion of the new monarch, when William will crown hims It and his consor king and queen of Pruss a, emphasizing after the example of his grandfather the doctrine of the divine right of kings.

These and other preliminary labors of his reign, stretching far into the autumn, are held to be important factors in returding an outbreak of war. The official circle nover attribited to the emperor an intention to cause an immediate war that would convulse Europe.

it d to the emperor an intention to cause an immediate war that would convulse Europe, nor an intention to rush headlong into enterprises that would imperil the unity of the emtire. Apart from the restraining influences of Bismarck, the emperor's bias is for the present toward the acquisition of knowledge of the personal forces with which he must deal in governing. Bismarck is, therefore, making arrangements for a meeting between the Emperor William and Emperor Francis Joseph and King Humbert. The crown prince of Austria will come to Berlin in August. The report that the czar proposes to visit Stettin, though it comes from doubtful Polish sources, is probably correct.

From the Americus, Ga., Recorder.

Handsome Conductor Lewis says his train ran down a tremendous gopher on the eastern extension a day or two since. The gopher stopped to drink water at the tank, which accounts for its being caught. It was captured and carried to Abbeville. The conductor did not say how much the gopher weighed, but he says it was the biggest he ever saw, and we believe it.

There was a novel sight on the streets this moraing. The negro boy John, working at Mayor Irvin's house, was riding on horseback with two poles, one on each shoulder, and suspended from these poles by the caudal extenity was an old mother 'possum and two young ones. The old one seemed to be very indignant, and would make frantic efforts to reach the horse's back, a few inches under her head. The young ones seemed frightened and would crawl up on their perch and survey the surroundings, in the midst of which a sudden jolt would drop them off only to crawl back again.

From the Cuthbert, Ga., Appeal.

Just liston and hear what happened a few days ago, four or five miles from Cuthbert, on Pachitla creek. A man set him out a gill net in the creek, some thirty or forty yards, to catch fish one evening, and on going to it next morning he found one stake missing. Going to the other stake he pulled it up and discovered a large alligator, as he thought, tangled arge alligator, as he thought, tangled net. Not so, the net was tangled in in the net. Not so, the net was tangled in him. He had swallowed net, fish and all, just leaving a handhold at one end. He led him leaving a handhold at one end. He led him to the bank and began to frail him over the head for his misconduct, when the "gator" began to get sick at the stomach, and commenced vomiting, and such a time of vomiting you never heard of. He threw up the net and fish and then bid his companion goodbye. The net only had about ten pounds of fish in it. THE TAIL COMPLETELY SEVERED.

THE TAIL COMPLETELY SEVERED.

Two or three weeks ago Mr. R. T. Mills brought to our office a cow's tail which had been cut off by a worm. It was the second which had been so cut in his herd, and he is at a loss to know what sort of worm does the mischief. He says it commenced by a ring appearing around the tail about a foot from the cow's body. After awhile the tail seems to become dead below this ring and in a few weeks it breaks off. The one we saw had the appearance of being cut around to the bone, and then down the bone under the skin for an inch, and looked just as we have seen limbs of trees looked just as we have seen limbs of trees look which had been cut off by a worm. Mr. Mills did not see the worm, but put kerosene oil on one of the cow's tails, when the sign of the worm appeared to try to intercept its work, but it did no good.

Mr. A. B. Howard had a dog to go mad about two weeks ago, The dog bit a cat and then commenced its tantrums and was killed. The cat went to acting strange Monday last, und fooled around considerably, cutting up anties that were amusing as well as dangerous. It would run up a tree, biting, growling, tearing and spitting, and jump out headlong. Tuesday it jumped on a big dog, caught it by the nose and clawed it terribly about the eyes. Howard enjoyed the fun until the mad animal got after his sister, and then for the first time realized that it was mad, and a thrill of horror shot through his frame. He picked up a stick, through his frame. He picked up a stick, knocked the rabid animal over, and as it rolled around, growling, spitting, biting and scratching at everything, he seized his gun and shot it. He is going to kill the dog it bit, and keep a watch on his other animals, as he is now fully scared.

He immediately realized that he had taken potash, which had been changed into the wrong bottle, instead of vinegar, and, by a strong effort, did not swallow any. Fine Farms in Georgia.

From the Canton, Ga., Advance.

We have had occasion to travel over a considerable portion of Alabama and Georgia with in the last few days, and, in our opinion, the crops of no section in which we have been, in either of these states, excel those in Cherokee county. The finest corn we know was seen in this county, on the farms of Captain Perkinson and Mr. J. H. Johnson, at Woodstock, and a Mr. Howell, near Ball Ground. Cherokee is one of the best, if not the best, farming cour ties in north Georgia. As to her many other advantages, she comes away up top on the list.

Mr. Reddick says it is an early variety of corn and was planted on the second day of April.

SENATOR PEEK'S RUSSIAN GUEST. indying the Cotton Plant for Information

at Home. Convers, Ga., June 24.—[Special.]—His Highness S. J. Ranner, an attache of the Rus-sian imperial houshold, with his beautiful and sian imperial houshold, with his beautiful and cultured wife, reached our county yesterday. This nobleman comes direct from Russia to study the minutize of cotton culture in the southern states, for the purpose of introducing this plant into central Asia. On the recommendation of our senators, governor and agricultural commissioner, he places himself under the instruction of our distinguished fellow citizen, Senator W. L. Peek.

Senator Peek, perhaps, has no equal in all this sunny land as a skillful, intelligent, active, practical planter. He is the model farmer of this county, and is pointed to as about the only one that is making the tillage of the soil a success by drawing from old mother earth rich annual dividends.

These eminent arrivals from the distant mother earth rich annual dividends.

These eminent arrivals from the distant north will enjoy a delightful sojourn at the elegant and luxurious villa, "Cottage Green," of his host and instructor.

Mr. Slezkin, from St. Petersburg, who spent last summer with Colonel Peek, on a similar mission, has published a volume in Russian, dated "Cottage Green, Rockdale County, Georgia," embodying the information he acquired on this subject while here. Our county has gained a Russian fame.

We are proud of our senator, and welcome our ilustrious guest.

DECATUR'S CANDIDATES. Politics Lively in the Extreme Southwest

Corner.

Bainbridge, Ga., June 24.—[Special.]—The political pot is beginning to simmer in this southwestern corner of the state. Hon. John D. Harrell will be a candidate before the democratic convention for renomination. In view of the fine record he made in the house the past four years, I think his renomination will be unanimous. Hon. E. A. J. Rich has not yet decided positively to offer again, although the people of Decatur were much pleased with him as a member of the last house. Captain G. A. Wright and Mr. J. J. Higdon, both prominent citizens of the eastern part of the county will be before the convention. Mr. W. B. McDaniel, organizer of the Farmer's Alliance, is also in the race. He is liable to withdraw, however, at any moment, and it is draw, however, at any moment, and it is whispered even that Hon. Rufus Connell, the author of the famous "Bachelor Bill," a measure that not only provoked the mirthful attention of the civilized world, but—Lary Gannt, is condidate also candidate also.
Colonel A. L. Hawes, of this city, will be urged before the state convention as presiden-tial elector from this district. He is one of the tried and true democrats of the second, whose long record and ability commends him to the people.

G. J. N. Wilson Talks of Early Times of Georgia.

Pendergrass, Ga., June 24.—[Special.]—
Seated on Genecal G. J. N. Wilson's piaza, a few evenings ago, and conversing with that very estimable gentleman, who is a veritable encyclopedia of Georgia's early lore, the topic turned on old relics and moss-coated curiosities. "I have," said he, "a gum cut from a Jackson county tree away in 1756. It was the third one taken off, and measured two and a half feet in diameter, the outside being about two inches thick. This vessel has served as a meal barrel, bee-hive and for various things in the nearly a century and a third since it was cut from the dark old woods. But there is a piece of furniture that shows they had some inished mechanics one hundred and twelve years ago," and he pointed to a wainut chest of remarkable workmanship and of quaint pattern. Then leading the way to the kitchen he showed me a cupboard, the lumber for which had been sawn with a whipsaw and made in the year 1786. All these relies are in an excellent state of preservation, and are kept bright and clean. these relies are in an excellent state vation, and are kept bright and clear

He married here, at the age of twenty, a daughter of Rev. William Ellington, who was the first minister who ever sounded the gospel trumpet in what was then a waste, howling wilderness. Years afterwards, in 1859, when Gilmer polled 1,100 votes, he ran one of the most exciting races for the senate ever contested in the 41st district. He defeated his opponent, he being the first and only man, perhaps, as he said, who ever beat whisky in Gilmer polities. He is growing old now, and his hair is silvered by the frosts of many winters, but "Uncle Bethe" still preaches, and he has a host of friends in Gilmer who are always glad to welcome him back to his old home. An Early Cockleweed.

From the Newman, Ga., Herald.

Mr. J. M. Houston, of the third district, exhibited a curiosity last Saturday in the shape of a cockleweed with fully matured burrs on it. When it is remembered that the cockleburr does not usually mature before September, the freak may be regarded as somewhat remarkable, to say the least. Mr. Houston says there is quite a growth of them in a field near his home, and all the burrs are in an equally advanced state of maturity.

REV. R. H. JACKSON'S CANDIDACY. Some Salty Opinions Expressed by the State

Press. The recent meeting in Heard county, called for railroad purposes, and afterwards turned into an anti-granger meeting, has turned the attention of the state press toward Rev. R. H. Jackson, president of the state Alliance, who figured in that meeting.

The Sandersville Progress says:

The Sandersville Progress says:

Rev. R. H. Jackson, president of the Georgia Farmers' Alliance, is a candidate for congress in the fourth, and is making a vigorous fight against Grimes. Tata, Alliancel your prospectus was good, your pretended objects praiseworthy, but when your president straddles you to run a political race, youare sure to come cut of it stringhaltered, spavined, stove-up and not worth a passing netice.

From the Dawson Jonanal. From the Dawson Journal.

From the Dawson Journal.

R. H. Jackson does not figure very well in his effort to control the politics of his section by attempting to array the farmers against every other class of the community. He seems to be rather premature in the use of the Alliance as a stepping stone on which he may mount to congress. We predict that the Alliance will sit down on Jackson with a big sit. From the Conver's South.

President R. H. Jackson, of the Farmer's Alliance rescent I. I herson, or the raimer's Atlance, has only been in that position for a little while, and thus early he is willing to be sacrificed upon the congressional altar. If his heart is in the work, as he claims, no inducement would be sufficient to get him to run lor congress. There is too much of this using the "down trodden farmers" for a stepping-stone to political glory. It is time for the farmers to wake up their own political privileges, and not be bestowing them on persons who only care for them as long as they can see them.

From the Newnan Herald. It has been repeatedly asserted that R./H. Jack-son, president of the Georgia Farmers' Alliance, would not be a candidate for congress in this dis-trict, or, if he was, the all ance would not support him, but it seems that he will be a candidate, and as a matter of course would expect the alliance to support him. Mr. Jackton may be a good man for the position, but it would be simply suicidal for him to make the race at this time for several reasons. In the first place, the members of the alliance in this district do not care to hazard the success of this district do not care to magard the success of their order and destroy its usefulness for the per-sonal aggrandizement of one man, for if they allow politics to enter at the front door the alliance will have to step out at the rear, There are hundreds of good alliance men all over the district who would not support Jackson from this very reason, not that they love their leader less but that they love the alliance and the good they hope it to bring them more. The al liance, as we understand it, was gotten up for the benefit of the farmers and not to be used as a tool to elect men to office. The very fact that at the meeting in Heard county the action of a former meeting which indorsed Grimes was repudiated, goes to show that Mr. Jackson, if he runs at all, will run in the that Mr. Jacason, it he rans at all, will run in the hope of securing the alliance vote all over the dis-trict, in which we fear he will find that he has reck-oned without his host. The quickest way in the world to bring discord and disruption into the ranks of the alliance is to admit politics into it, and its destruction will soon be made complete.

FIRED BY A WOMAN.

A Sensational Case of Arson in Anderson, South Carolina.

Columbia, S. C., June 24.—[Special.1—Creat feeling is reported to have been excited in the city of Anderson on account of the prosecution of Mrs. Mollie Keese, white, for house burning. For some months past the city has suffered from a frequency of fires, supposed to be incendiary. One of these was that which destroyed a stable belonging to one, Keese, on the 21st of May. Suspicion attached to Mrs. Keese, and there was talk of prosecuting her but prominent citizens investigated the matter and published a statement completely exonerating her. Since then the city council employed a detective, and as a result of his work she has been arrested. The proliminary hearing is not yet through. Leading lawyers appear on each side, and the contest will be bitter. The prosecution claims that a certain track leading from Mrs. Keese's house to the site of the stable fitted her shoe. It was sworn by a negro woman that Mrs. Keese brought her the shoes and gave her some clothes and a by a negro woman that Mrs. Keese brought her the shoes and gave her some clothes and a gold ring to claim the shoes as her own. By many Mrs. Keese is believed to have been at times partially deranged. She has hitherto borne an excellent character.

wreck of a capsized rail-train, proving by elaborate argument that something is out of order. Adam tumbled over the embankment sixty centuries ago, and the whole race, in one long train, has gone on tumbling in the same direction. Crash! crash! The only question now is, by what leverage can the crushed thing be lifted? By what hammer may the fraguents be reconstructed?

I want to show you how we may turn many

I want to show you how we may turn many to righteousness, and what will be our future pay for so doing.

First: We may turn them by the charm of a right example. A child, coming from a filthy home was taught at school to wash its face. It went home so much improved in appearance that its mother washed her face. And when the father of the household came home, and the father of the household came home, and saw the improvement in domestic appearance, he washed his face. The neighbors happening in, saw the change, and tried the same experiment until all that street was purified, and the next street copied its example, and the whole city felt the result of one schoolboy washing his face. That is a fable, by which we set forth that the best way to get the world washed of its sins and pollution is to have our own heart and life cleansed and purified. A man with grace in his heart and Christian cheerfulness in his face, and holy consistency in his behavior is a perpetual sermon, and the man with grace in his heart and Christian cheerfulness in his face, and holy consistency in his behavior is a perpetual sermon, and the sermon differs from others in that it has but one head, and the longer it runs the better. There are honest men who walk down Wall street making the teeth of iniquity chatter. There are happy men who go into a sick room, and, by a look, help the broken bone to knit, and the excited nerves drop to calm beating. There are pure men whose presence silences the tongue of uncleanliness. The mightiest agent of good on earth is a consistent Christian. I like the Bible folded between hids of cloth, of calfskin or morocco, but I like it better when, in the shape of a man, it goes out into the world—a Bible illustrated. Courage is beautiful to read about; but rather would I see a man with all the world were for him. Patience is beautiful to read about; but rather would I see a buffeted soul calmly waiting for the time of deliverance. Faith is beautiful to read about; but rather would I find a man in the midnight walking straight on as though he saw everything. Oh, how many souls have

Winfield, Kansas, Yesterday—A Great Outdoor meeting held in this place, where the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D., was the preacher. Not only this, but adjoining states were represented in the congregation, and the occasion will be long remembered. The text was: "They that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars for ever and ever."

Souls we might in prayer lay hold of the resources of the Lord omnipotent. We may turn many to righteousness by Christian admention. Do not wait until you can make a formal speech Address the one next to you. You will not go home alone today. Between this and your place of stopping you may decide the eternal destiny of an immortal spirit. Just one sentence may do the work. Just one question. Just one look. The formal talk that begins with a sight, and ends with a canting snuffle is not what is wanted, but the heart-throb of a man in dead earnest. There is not a soul on earth that you may not bring to God if you rightly go at it. They said Gibraltar could not be taken. It is a rock, sixteen hundred feet high and three miles long. But the English and Dutch did take it. Artillery, and sappers, and miners, and fleets pouring out volleys of death, and thousans of men, reckless of danger, can do anything. The stoutest begins to a soul on the that you may not bring to God if you rightly go at it. They said Gibraltar could not be taken. It is a rock, sixteen hundred feet high and three miles long. Eyery man has a thousand roots und a thousand of the surface of the said of sing thought it is starled of the surface, with through all the earth; his branches pread through all the heavens. He speaks with voice, with eye, with hand, with foot. His silence often is thunder, and his life is an anthem or a doxology. There is no such thing as negative influence. We are all positive in the place we occupy, making the world better or making it worse, on the Lord's side or on the devil's, making up reasons for our blessedness or banishment; and we have already done a mightly work in peopling heaven or hell. I hear people tell of what they are going to do. A man who has burned down a city might as well talk of some eyel that he expects to do, or a man who has saved an empire might as well talk of some good that he expects to do, or a man who has burned down a city might as well talk of some good that he expects to do, or a man who has burne tire nature a tremble and a fiash with light, they shall shine as the stars for ever and ever. Again: Christian workers shall be like the stars in the fact that they have a light independent of each other. Look up at the night, and see each world show its distinct glory. It is not like the conflagration, in which you cannot tell where one flame stops and another begins. Neptune, Herschel and Morcury are as distinct as if each one of them were the only star; so our individualism will not be lost in heaven. A great multitude—yet each one as observable, as distinctly recognized, as greatly celebrated, as if in all the space, from gate to gate, and from hill to hill, he were the only inhabitant; no mixing up—no mob—no indiscriminate rush; each Christian worker standing out illustrious—all the story of earthly achievement adhering to each one; his self-denials, and pains, and services, and victories published. Before men went out to the last war, the orators told them that they would all be remembered by their country, and their names be commemorated in poetry and in seng; but go to the graveyard in Richmond, and you will find there six thousand graves, over each one of which is the inscription, "Unknown." The world does not remember its heroes; but there will be unrecognized Christian workers in heaven. Each one known by all; grandly known; known by acclamation; all the past story of work for God nized Christian workers in heaven. Each one known by all; grandly known; known by acclamation; all the past stery of work for God gleaming in cheek, and brow, and foot, and palm. They shall shine with distinct light as the stars, for ever and ever.

Again: Christian workers shall shine like the stars in clusters. In looking up, you find the worlds in family circles. Brothers and sisters—they take hold of each other's hands and dance in group. The Faith is beautiful to read about; but rather would I find a man in the midnight walking straight on as though he saw everything. Oh, how many souls have been turned to God by the charm of bright. example!

When, in the Mexican war, the troops were wavering, a general rose in his stirrups and dashed hit of the consumers and distriction of stately Christains. They lived on earth by fight rule. They never laughed. They walk devery hour tanxious less they should lose their distriction. They seeing his courage and disposition, chanded on after him and grain for God is an example to lead them. All your commands to others to advance amount to nothing so long as you stay behind. To affect them aright, you need to start for heaven yourself, looking back only to give the stirring Gry of "Men, follow!"

Again. We may turn many to righteouses by prayer. There is no such detective as prayer, for no one can hide away from it. I try this is thand on the shoulder of a man ten thousand miles off. It alights on a ship mid the law of electricity, or how the telegraphic operator, by touching the instrument here, may dart a message under the sea to another continent nor can we, with our small intellect, understand how the touch of a Christian's prayer shall instantly strike a sout on the other side of the earth. You take ship and go to some other country, and get there at 10 clock in the same morning. In other worls, of clock in the asame morning. To take ship and go to some other country, and get there at 10 clock in the morning. You telegraphic to clock in the mo line, and announced that Herschel is thirty-six thousand miles in diameter, Saturn seventy-nine thousand miles in diameter, and Jupiter eighty-nine thousand miles in diameter, and that the smallest pearl on the beach of heaven is immense beyond all imagination. So all they who have totled for Christ on earth shall rise up to a magnitude of privilege, and a magnitude of strength, and a magnitude of holiness, and a magnitude of joy; and the weakest saint in glory become greater than all that we can now imagine of an archangel.

Brethren, it doth not yet appear what we shall be. Wisdom that shall know everything; wealth that shall do everything; glory that shall circumscribe everything! We shall not be like a taper set in a sick man's window, or shall circumscribe everything! We shall not be like a taper set in a sick man's window, or a bundle of sticks kindled on the beach to warm a shivering crew; but you must take the diameter and the circumference of the world if you would get any idea of the greatness of our estate when we shall shine as the stars for ever and ever our estate when we shall shine as the stars for ever and ever.

Lastly—and coming to this point my mind almost breaks down under the contemplation—like the stars, all Christian workers shall shine in duration. The same stars that look down upon us looked down upon the Chaldean shepherds. The meteor that I saw flashing across the sky the other night, I wender if it was not the same one that pointed down to was not the same one that pointed down to was not the same one that pointed down to where Jesus lay in the manger, and if, having pointed out His birthplace, it has ever since been wandering through the heavens, watching to see how the world would treat Him. When Adam awoke in the garden, in the cool of the day, he saw coming out through the dusk of the evening the same worlds that were the world was now was to church twicht.

To the ancients the stars were symbols of eternity.

But here the figure of my text breaks down—not in defeat, but in the majesties of the judgment. The stars shall not shine forever. The Bible says they shall fall like autumnal leaves. It is almost impossible for a man to take in a courser going a mile in three minutes; but God shall take in the worlds, flying a hundred thousand miles an hour, by one pull of his little finger. As, when the factory band slips at night-fall from the main wheel, all the smaller wheels slacken an hour, by one pull of his little finger. As, when the factory band slips at night-fall from the main wheel, all the smaller wheels slacken their speed, and with slower and slower motion they turn until they come to a full stop, so this great machinery of the universe, wheel within wheel, making revolution of appalling speed, shall by the touch of God's hand slip the band of present law and slacken and stop. That is what will be the matter with the mountains. The charlots in which they ride shall halt so suddenly that the kings shall be thrown out. Star after star shall be carried out to burial amid furneral torches and burning worlds. Constellations shall throw ashes on their heads, and all up and down the highways of space, there shall be mourning, mourning, because the worlds are dead. But the Christian workers shall never quit their thrones—they shall reign forever and ever. If, by some invasion from hell, the attempt were made to carry them off into captivity from Heaven, the souls they have saved would rally for their defense, and all the angels of God would strike with their scenters, and the redeemed, on white horses of victory, would ride down the foe, and all the steep of the sky would resound with the crash of the corrections of the coverience of the coverie overwhelmed cohorts tumbled headlong out of heaven.

INVALIDS' HOTEL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE

No. 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. V.

Not a Hospital, but a pleasant Remedial Home, organized with

A FULL STAFF OF EIGHTEEN PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

And exclusively devoted to the treatment of all Chronic Diseases.

This imposing Establishment was designed and creeted to accommodate the large number of invalids who visit Buffalo from every State and Territory, as well as from many foreign lands, that they may avail themselves of the professional services of the Staff of skilled specialists in medicine and surgery that compose the Faculty of this widely-celebrated institution.

A FAIR AND BUSINESS-LIKE OFFER TO INVALIDS.

We carnestly invite you to come, see and examine for yourself, our institutions, appliances, advantages and success in curing chronic diseases. Have a mind of your own. Do not listen to or heed the counsel of skeptical friends or fealous physicians, who know nothing of us, our system of treatment, or means of cure, yet who never lose an opportunity to misrepresent and endeavor to prejudice people against us. We are responsible to you for what we represent, and if you come and visit us, and find that we have misrepresented, in any particular, our institutions, advantages or success, we will promptly refund to you all expenses of your trip. We court honest, sincere investigation, have no secrets, and are only too gird to show all interested and candid people what we are doing for suffering humanity.

NOT ALWAYS NECESSARY TO SEE PATIENTS.

By our original system of diagnosis, we can treat many chronic diseases just as successfully without as with a personal consultation. While we are always glad to see our patients, and become acquainted with them, show them our institutions, and familiarize them with our system of treatment, yet we have not seen one person in five hundred whom we have cured. The perfect accuracy with which scientists are enabled to deduce the most minute particulars in their several departments, appears almost miraculous, if we view it in the light of the early ages. Take, for example, the electro-magnetic telegraph, the greatest invention of the age. Is it not a marvelous degree of accuracy with which this system has endowed us that which enables an operator to exactly locate a fracture in a submarine cable nearly three thousand miles long? Our venerable "clerk of the weather" has become so thoroughly familiar with the most wayward elements of nature that he can accurately predict their movements. He can sit in Washington and foretell what the weather will be in Florida or New York as well as if several hundred miles did not intervene between him and the places named. And so in all departments of modern science, what is required is the knowledge of certain signs, or symptoms, and by reason of this fact, we have been enabled to originate and perfect a system of examinating and treating patients, furnish abundant and unmistakable data, to guide the judgment of treating lingering or chronic disease, and the greatest skill, the present of the carriance are contained in "The People's Common Sense than the physicians making the treatment of six only well as the proper of chronic diseases and cover 30 colored and other illustrations. COMMON SENSE AS APPLIED TO MEDICINE.

It is a well-known fact, and one that appeals to the judgment of every thinking person, that the physician who devotes his whole time to the study and investigation of a certain class of diseases, must become better qualified to treat such diseases than he who attempts to treat every ill to which field he heir, without giving special attention to any class of diseases. Men, in all ages of the world, who have become famous, have devoted their lives to some special branch of science, art, or literature.

By thorough organization, and subdividing the practice of medicine and surgery in this institution, every invalid is treated by a specialist—one who devotes his undivided attention to the particular class of diseases to which the case belongs. The advantage of this arrangement must be obvious. Medical science offers a vast field for investigation, and no physician can, within the brief limits of a life-time, achieve the highest degree of success in the treatment of every malady incident to humanity.

OUR FIELD OF SUCCESS.

DISEASES OF DISEAS

BRIGHT'S DISEASE, DIABETES, and kindred maladies, have been very largely treated and cures effected in thousands of cases which had been pronounced beyond hope. These diseases are readily diagnosticated, or determined, by chemical analysis of the urine, without a personal examination of patients, who can, therefore, generally be successfully treated at their homes. SUBSICAL PRACTICE.

Hundreds of the most difficult operations known to modern surgery are annually performed in the most skillful manner, by our Surgeon-specialists. Large Stones are safely removed from the Bladder, by crushing, washing and pumping them out, thus avoiding the great danger of cutting. Our specialists, remove cataract from the eye, thereby curing blindness. They also straighten cross-eyes and insert artificial ones when needed. Many Ovarian and also Fibroid Tumors of the Uterus are arrested in growth and cured by electrolysis, coupled with other means of our invention, whereby the great danger of cutting operations in these cases is avoided.

Especially has the success of our improved operations for Variancell, Hydrocele, Fistulae, Ruptured Cervix Uteri, and for Ruptured Perincum, been alike gratifying both to ourselves and our patients. Not less so have been the results of numerous operations for Stricture of the Cervical Canal, a condition in the female generally resulting in Barrenness, or Sterility, and the cure of which, by a safe and painless operation, removes this commonest of impediments to the bearing of offspring.

"Marching Through Georgia." The casual reader who runs his eyes hurcledly down a column of telegraphic news must have been impressed with one thing during the past week. If he read any of the reports from Chicago he must have come to conclusion that a big crowd had assembled in that city for the sole purpose of listening to "Marching Through Georgia Before the convention assembled the band struck up "Marching Through Georgia," and everybody went wild. During a luil in the proceedings several hundred delegates joined in singing "Marching Through Geor" gia," and when they got through the band took a whack at the same tune. And it was the same thing every day. One cannot read half a dozen paragraphs in a Chicago telegram without running against this musical

The bloody shirt crowd and the fellows who don't know that the war is over may consider "Marching Through Georgia," jolly sort of tune, but in point of fact it is out of date and not entitled to a place among our patriotic airs. The only "Marching Through Georgia" that our people know anything about at the present time is the steady march of peace, progress and prosperity—a march which the Chicago convention is doing its best to in-terrupt and check. There is no sinister ring of martial music in this march, no discord of warlike sounds; there is nothing but the hum of traffic and the sonorous diapason of our buzzing and roaring industries.

But the men who represent the party of hate at the Chicago convention will not keep step to the peaceful music of the union. They must have the old war songs and tunes that will remind them of the rattle and clash of battle. Let them enjoy the racket while they can. It will take something more than sounding brass and tinkling cymbals to console them in November.

THE ballotting of the republican convention was yesterday carried on in the Chicago beer gardens. It is rumored that Hon, John Barleycorn developed unexpected strength.

In the Interest of Debtors. A recent act of congress will afford in finite satisfaction to many debtors who have been insulted and annoyed through the mails by their angry creditors.

Postmaster General Dickinson has just issued an order in which he notifies postmasters that on June 18th the president approved an act with the following provisions: "And all matter otherwise mailable by law upon the envelope or outside cover or wrapper of which or postal card, upon which indecent, lewd, lasei ious, obscene, libelous, scurrilous or threatening de-lineations, epithets, terms, or language, or reflecting injuriously upon the character or conduct of an-other may be written or printed, are hereby declared to be non-mailable matter."

The punishment for violating this law is fixed at a fine of not less than $100 or more than $5,000, or imprisonment at hard labor for not less than one year or more than ten years, or both, at the discretion of the into democratic politics. court, for each and every offense. Postoffice employes are made liable to the punishment for knowingly handling such matter.

The postmaster general says in his order: "Any possal cards, or any other matter upon the envelope or outside cover of which appears any-thing which reflects injuriously to the person ad-dressed, or any one else, or upon his character or conduct, or is plainly calculated to injure his feelings or reputation, or bring him into discredit, or which threatens him, will be excluded. Anything in the nature of an offensive or threatening dun, apparent upon an envelope, outside cover or postal card, or conveying the suggestion that such dun is inclosed, will be excluded as non-mailable under

This is a sweeping order, but it is all right. When a creditor wants to threaten or insult a debtor, he should do it to his face, and not get the employes of the government to deliver his message.

But out in Chicago creditors have a method of collecting debts which is fully as bad as the reprehensible postal card system. They send out a man with a cart, on which is rinted the sign: "Bad debts collected." When this cart stops at a man's door, it brings him into such notoriety that he generally scrapes up enough money to pay his Sometimes, however, the cart stops at the wrong door, and a good citizen is injured. Occasionally the debtor loses his temper, and then the driver of the cart gets roughly handled. One of these offensive dunners was half killed by a Chicago lawyer, and the jury decided that he was properly panished. It is the opinion of good lawyers that a suit for personal damages would stand against any creditor who resorts to such methods of collecting.

Persons who are not willing to run the risk of collecting the bills due them, in a decent and legitimate way, should limit themselves to a cash business, and give credit to nobody. They have no right to disturb the peace of the community simply because they have shown bad judgment in the conduct of their business.

A WILD man is running around lose in the woods around Hartford. Perhaps it is one of the republican dark horses.

A Sensitive Mexican. General Mexia, the representative of the Mexican government at the recent dedication of the Texas state capitol at Austin, has made an official report, in which he claims that his country was insulted by Judge Terrell, the orator of the day. It appers that Judge Terrell used the following language: han those who gave to Texas her liberty and civil mation. These numbered 25,000 men, and their enemies were $,00,000, and no ocean rolled between. In spite of everything, with one hand they humbled the pride of Mexico in San Jacinto, in the meanwhile having had to repulse the savages, and with the other exected their capitol on the hunting grounds of the Comanches. General Mexia in his report says that he heard this allusion to the war with Mexico with indignation and surprise. He thought that as he had been invited to the dedicawas hemmed in by the crowd, and it required such a strong effort on his part to control his feelings that he was the victim of a serious illness after the celebration. It consoled him somewhat to find that Judge Terrell's allusion to Mexico was not cheered by the audience, and when the gov-ernor of the state told him that he deeply regretted the unpleasant incident, General Mexia decided that the matter simply merited the contempt of the Mexican govern-

The Mexican general displayed too much sensitiveness, but most of his countrymen would have felt just as he did. The Mexicans are still under the impression that in all their battles with the Americans they came out on top. Their historians convey this impression, and characterize the American armies as undisciplined mobs. Judge Terrell might very well have omitted the sentence about humbling the pride of Mexico, but it is a difficult matter to satisfy our neighbors south of the Rio Grande. They firmly believe that they are able to hold their own against us, and whenever we indulge in our usual style of spreadeagle oratory they are going to flare up and revive their old hatreds and prejudices. The Mexicans are too sensitive.

BROTHER BLAINE has been visiting the ruins of Melrose. When he returns to this country he will have the pleasure of gazing on the picturesque ruins of a number of presidential booms.

"Blaine or Bust."

It has at last dawned upon the leaders in the Chicago convention that the friends of Mr. Blaine are the Ishmaelites of the body, and that the ballots which they throw around are intended to kill off the prenounced candidates. This duplicity, worthy of the master in whose service it is used, is calling out the denunciation of the honest delegates, and there is now promise that today's ballot may prove a "bust" for Blaine instead of for the convention.

For the credit of American manhood it is hoped that the disgraceful tactics of the Maine leader may be signally rebuked. So long continued, however, has been the debauchery of the republican party, that but feeble protest may be expected, and it will remain for the people to pass upon the whole question at the polls.

DEPEW should make an after-breakfast speech today in behalf of Blaine.

A Significant Canvas. The recent state temperance convention, held in this city, passed a resolution in favor of statutory prohibition. This, of course, makes the question an issue in the legislative races.

The answers are beginning to come in. and, curiously enough, the most significant one comes from the senatorial district repesented in the last legislature by Mr. Pringle. That district is composed of Hancock, Baldwin and Washington counties. Hancock and Baldwin have both reaffirmed their belief in prohibition by second verdicts at the polls, and Washington county, as the home of Mr. Pringle, is securely "dry."

It is Baldwin's turn to furnish the senator. Colonel J. J. Whitfield announced himself as a candidate. Knowing that Colonel Whitfield had voted against prohibition, his candidacy was at once antagenized by Mr. Miller Grieve, on behalf of the prohibitionists. Mr. Grieve's name was withdrawn, and that of Mr. Latimer substituted, because of his personal strength in Hancock. Thus a bitter "wet and dry" fight was injected

Hancock county led off in opposition to this course, and insisted that a candidate's democracy should not be measured by his vote on prohibition. The Ishmaelite, a strong prohibition advocate, wrote against the introduction of such a disturbing question. All over the three counties the expression was so clear that in the Baldwin mass meeting, on Saturday, Mr. Latimer retired from the race, and Colonel Whitfield was nominated.

This incident in the legislative race is certainly suggestive.

WHAT IS THE use of having any Fourth of July this year? It is hot enough without it. THE DELAY IN Chicago is rough on the colored delegates, but it is quite likely that a barrel has been tapped for their benefit.

Thus FAR IT has been an unusually busy and prosperous presidential year.

Possibly Mr. Blaine was in carnest about keeping out of the race, but he left his boss. Miss Gail Hamilton, out of his calculation That strong-minded lady, however, will stand no nonsense. What profits it to her to be called the plumed knight's Egeria, if she is to have no influence over him. Gail has her eyes on the white house, and she will set Blaine's face in the same direction if she has to lead him by the ear.

IT IS THE hottest June that New York has nown in seventeen years.

NEW ORLEANS IS fighting diphtheria. There were fifty-six cases and twenty-two deaths in May. The board of health has gone to work to disinfect dwellings where the disease has prevailed, and the vigorous methods adopted in stamping out small pox will be employed to route this equally dangerous enemy.

THERE IS A very strong feeling down this tempting to boom Gresham in his speech was not so much of a blunder after all-that it was all a part of the Blaine programme.

THE HOLD WHICH Mrs. Logan has upon the hearts of northern soldiers has ma itself in the great assistance she has been to the Alger boom. As a veteran who lives in Atlanta put it:" I'm a pretty rabid democrat, but I think if the widow of John A. Logan were to ask me to cast my ballot for any particular candidate, I wouldn't stop to think of instructions."

As a solution of the republican difficulty what's the matter with Pullman and Pledger

THE PEOPLE OF Canada pay only $150,000 a year for salary and expenses of a governor general. Apropos of the departure of Lord Lar downe and the arrival of Lord Stanley, the Toronto Globe says: "Since confederation Rideau hall has cost about $2,500,000. The country might have a new seal stamp out from Downing street every week and return the old one for a hundredth of the money. All the ceremonies incident to the departure and arrival of governor generals might be gon sending and receiving stamps. The suggested reform would save successive worthy obleman from seasickness and homesickness It wouldn' do a particle of harm to anybody.

Gath gives a pleasant impression of Harrison when he says: "After all there was an impression in the convention that the name of Harrison was a good one; that it had been worthily borne and without aristocratic affections."

Through Atlanta on suit we have a first meeting of the Georgia Press association, and if the board of directors will meet me at the depot, I will let them know just when to expect me on the grounds. tations; that the first governor of the northwestern territories, after the separation of Ohio, was quite Wilham, the Norman, in his way, and though he lived in the territories and carned his living by toil, was fairly admirable in the third generation. The west, indeed has only one family to compare with the Liv-ingstons, Adamses and Jays in the east, and that is the family of Harrison. The Clays and Jacksons have all gone to pieces. The early governors of Ohio left but little impression, but from the old territorial residence at Vin cennes has proceeded a family of resuscitative power, and it is quite probable that General Ben Harrison is more than either his grand-father or his great-grandfather, though those reached station. Beyond those persons the pedigree of the Harrisons goes back to him, who commanded the guard around the scaffold of Charles I., and who suffered without whining all the penalties of a regicide. Out of that Puritan day probably has come some of the curious streaks in Ben Harrison's character, such as his sudden cooling when he might be warm and warming when least expected, but a long connection with a great political party is much of a test of a man's natural character o have taken up with politics widely different from that of his graudfather and to have comletely changed the civilization of a slaveholding family for that of an indignant northern abolitionism, to have gone into the war upon that spur and then to have taken up forne from the very ground and from the body of the people to have again merged as a civil candidate for governor, elected senator, and all that, realized at least the American conception of public life."

GEORGE ALFRED TOWNSEND hasn't much use for the I-am-holier-than-thou political pharisees. Writing of the attacks upon Harrison and other candidates he says: In the course of time we must send our candidates, like old St. Simon Stylites, up to the top of a column in childhood, that nothing can sting them but bees. This rainment of flesh that men wear can never be without its stains and dust hence mputation is the cheapest and easiest thing in natural history. "He eats pork," "He uses olive oil," "He parts his hair in the middle," "He has at home a set of pajamas," "There was a grand-aunt of his who died in the poorhouse!" "Anyhow, there was a question about a bill he once had with the butcher." These are serious imputations compared to what some of the very great business men who favor Mr. Gresham, for example, are willing to say about his competitors. It would, therefore, seem that holiness is the parent of slander, and that the higher the standard fixed for one candidate, the meaner can be the slimy cascades from his feet."

THE DELEGATES to the Chicago convention may be classed under three heads—the drunk, the sick and the mad.

THE IMAGINATION OR FAITH will aid any locter. Dr. Clinton, of the Manhattan hospital, reports a case of a man sick with inmation of the stomach, When first entering the hospital he took morphine at night because of wakefulness from real pain. Seeing that the patient was liable to remain in the nospital for some time, and fearing the longcontinued use of the morphine would enger der a habit of taking it continually, the doctor discontinued the use of it. The patient was restless, nervous and wakeful, and finally the expedient of giving him a dose of water rendered bitter with quinine was resorted to. The man presently fell into a sound slumber, and has been enjoying a comfortacble night's rest ever since, through faith in his sleeping potion. Salt and water are frequently given for bromide with beneficial effect, and in numerous seases water rendered slightly bitter or distasteful is very frequently used with most satisfactory results.

THE NEW YORK and Ohio delegates to Chicago are notable for the prominent men at their head. Of New York the delegates at large are Frank Hiscock, Channeey M. Depew, Warner Miller and Thomas C. Platt; of Ohio, J. B. Foraker, Ben Butterworth, Wm. McKinley and Charles Foster.

TO SOON WED THE LILY

Mrs. Langtry May Be Mrs. Gebhardt In September.

She Will be Divorced by That Time-No Hitch in the California Courts-How the Love Secret Leaked Out.

NEW YORK, June 24 .- Frederick Gebhardt and Mrs. Lillie Langtry are to be married in September. This is definite and certain. They have long been betrothed, and public rumor has mated them, but Mrs. Langtry will not much before the time mentioned be legally free from her present husband. That has been the only reason why Gebhardt and the beautiful actress have not been wedded long 'ere this. Her husband refused several offers, made through the law firm of Howe & Hummel, of a portion of her wealth if he would consent to a separation. He declined all these propositions, and took good care that she should not have the only ground valid in the state of New York on which to obtain a divorce. He is now a hotel keeper at an English seaside resort, and it is five years since he and his wife have met.

At length Mrs. Langtry, while in San Francisco last year, acquired real estate there, land made the city her legal residence. That now enables her to put forward a suit for divorce, and this will to a certainty make her a free woman in August. Any hitch in the proceedings will be unexpected, and the couple are advised that none is possible.

The explicit announcement of matrimony in September for Gebhardt and Mrs. Langtry was made a few days ago, at a dinner given by Mrs. Langtry at her New York residence, in West Twenty-third street. Two of the guests were James Gordon Bennett and ex-Judge Gunning S. Bedford, old cronies of Gebhardt, although they are a decade older than he. Or this occasion, Bennett offered as a toast the union of the fair hostess and Gebhardt, who sat in the chair of honor at her right.

"Thank you," Mrs. Langtry responded, "and your good wish is going to be realized

"How soon ?" Bedford asked. "May I answer that?" Gebhardt inquired of Mrs. Langtry.

She gave permission, and he then said that the wedding would occur early in September —possibly a little sconer—in San Francisco, to which city they will journey, according to present arrangements, in July.

Mrs. Langtry and Gebhardt have purchased adjoining farms, comprising altogether thou-sands of acres, in a valley of the Howell mountains in California. There they will spend their honeymoon, and subsequently the lady's vacations between her seasons on the stage. The estate is described as naturally very beautiful, taking in an entire valley them out from the rude world. But the pair do not intend to sit down idly in a bower a gaze out rapturously on a Lake Como. They will go into farming on a rather extensive scale. There is a vineyard of considerable size on the land, and the farms are plentifully stocked with cattle, horses, mules and swine all of which will be bred for sale. Mrs. Langtry is rich. It is believed that besides living very expensively, she has accumulated a much as two hundred thousand dollars. Geb hardt draws an income of twenty-five thousand a year from his deceased father's estate and this will soon be augmented by renewals of leases at advanced rates. So, it is not necessary for them to farm it as a business, nor for Mrs. Langtry to do any more acting, but in both matters they prefer to be active. Mrs Langtry led an outdoor life until she went on the stage, and is therefore enraptured with the dea of California husbandry. As to her the atrical career, she is not only ambitious to excel as an artist, but she tells her friends that sooner or later she will have the direction of a

A Female Minstrel Troupe Arouses the Indignation of the Town of Barre.

From the N. Y. Graphic.

Barre is a quiet, religious town of the strict

New England variety. No soulless, sinful show ever billed itself in that village until last week ever billed itself in that village until has wear. Then a brazen-faced advance agent appeared, and flaming posters on every fence in the town next morning aunounced the coming of a female roinstrel troupe. In two hours after sun-up a church meeting was called, and the local chronicler fairly reveis in the details of the meeting. It was held in Salvation Hall. The first to enter was Deacon Robert Williams ert Williams.

He laid aside his hat and linen cluster, three up the lights, wiped his forchead with a red bandana, and carefully adjusted his spectacles. One by one the church members dropped in, and when a quorum had been sequred the deacon called the society to order. The first speaker was Sister Maria Smith. She stated that a collection of bold, forward young women were coming to town, and proposed to exhibit themselves on the opera house them. stage in Greek Stave overconts and heetic flushes; that the agent of the minstrel company had spread posters all over town hearing pictures of young women whose dresses did not come down as far as the knee; that it was a crying disgrace to the town to permit such things, where there were so many young people growing up, and that it was the duty of the society to provent these traveling singers from discrete the terms. the duty of the society to prevent these traveling sinners from disgracing the town with their presence. Deacon Wilkins said that he did not believe in those kind of shows, but he thought Sister Smith was too severe in her denunciation of the posters. He had seen them, and thought that if the pictures were true representations of the originals the young women had no need to be ashamed of their shapes. This mild protest brought down a storm of wrath on Decon Wilking's head and he went out hastily on Decon Wilkins's head, and he went out hastily to see a friend. Sister Smith said that the remarks of Mr. Wilkins were ridiculous; that it was a pity to think that a man as old as he was should display enthusiasm over a lot of vulgar pictures. She recommended that the society communicate with the manager of the itinerant hussies and advise him not to visit Parre, for if he should they would re-quest the authorities to prevent their exhibition. If he young women could be made to wear skirts, owever, they would be permitted to perform. All these arguments were approved by the members of the society present, and the following resolutions were drawn:

Queer Sequel To a Long Past Event. Gentleman Tells the Story of a Thrilling

Experience, and Finds that His Lis eners Already Know the Facts. A writer in a recent number of the Nashvillo Democrat narrates the facts concerning an incident that occurred in that city a few days since, a very strange coincidence to say the least, and one so interesting in its nature as to merit a place beside the creations of the brain of the novelist or story teller. A gentleman who has been a great traveler and visited nearly every portion of the globe has been spending a few weeks in Nashville. Like most great travelers, he is a fluent talker and a boon companion. Among other friends whom he made here was a young business thorougfares of the city and lives with his mother, a widow lady, a little past the middle age, in a pretty cottage in one of the quiet su-burbs of Nashville. The young man was much taken with his new acquaintance, who, one afternoon, after having refused several former invitations, consented to go home with him to supper.

As the young man, his mother, who is an invalid, and the stranger sat on the portice after supper chatting quietly, the young man incidentally reminded his mother of some of his schoolboy pranks, which he said occurred while he was at school in Baltimore before his parents had returned from a residence of ten years in Australia. The stranger remarked that he had once lived at Melbourne, Australia, and after an interesting conversation with the lady and her son about points on the antipodes familiar to them all, said that he had a peculiar experience on his way home. On being pressed to tell the story by his young friend, he said: him to supper.

"That was some ten years ago. I was quite a young man, though having just served a term in the British army, in which I enlisted when a mere boy, and was on my way home to "We had been a few days out from Australia when a storm came up, and our ship struck a hidden rock and began to fill with water. We when a storm came up, and our ship struck a hidden rock and began to fill with water. We saw there was nothing to do but to take to the boats, which we did pell mell, without much regard to good breeding or etiquette, each fearing that he would be left. There were three ladies on the ship, and I noticed as our boat was about to pull out one of them was left. I called the captain's attention to it, but he said our boat already had enough in her to sink her; and ordered the oarsmen to do their work. I was a big, stapping, good natured fellow, and lated to see the poor woman left, who, by the way, seemed a lady, but was very lonely, and so I caught hold of the side of the ship and held on till the lady was within a few feet of us, when she fell in a swoon. I jumped to her side, seized her in my arms and sprang back on the boat just as it was separating from the sinking ship for the last time. The captain was so angry with me that he shot at me twice with a pistol, one ball missing me entirely and the other just grazing my knee. There was no good blood between the captain and me after that; but it was no time for righting, as shortly afterward the breakers overturned our boat while passing over a reef trying to make our way to a little coral island. I was a splendid swimmer, and soon found myself on shore a man swimming bravely for the island and the lady whom I had rescued from the ship, clinging helplessly to a fragment of the boat. The man was soon by my side, the lady whom I had rescued from the ship, clinging helplessly to a fragment of the boat. The man was soon by my side, though in a state of utter exhaustion, and I concluded as I had saved the lady's life once, I'd try and do so again. Acting upon the impulse, I swam out to where she was, and finally succeeded in getting her to land in an unconscious state. She came to, but her reason had deserted her, and she was a wild, raving maniae. I ate a coconnut and drank the milk, and got some for the lady and my companion, who had succeeded in getting to shore. He was taken suddenly ill from taking too much salt water into his stomach, and died the second day after we were wrecked. I buried him in the sand, and made a little house out of cocoanut leaves for the lady, but she was so crazy she would not stay in it and would not eat anything. She would run about the island and scratch and hurt herself, till finally I caught her and tied her up with ropes A certain young man, who is a first-class grocery clerk, asked us yesterday how long it would take him to learn to be an editor. Her Beautiful Driving.

"Woman coming driving a horse!"

She dashed on down the street. Those who were warned in time got out of her way; the others were borne down. The truck drivers and fee wagon men hurried into side streets. The passengers got off a horse-car and lifted it from the truck and gave her the right-of-way. Was she insane or anything of that kind? O, no, not at all. She was all right-simply one of those ladies who "like to drive," and "can handle a horse better than any man they ever saw," "dearly love horses," and all that sort of

Then she comes to a hill and agitates the whip all the way to the top. She is fonder riding fast when she drives. And this horse just loves to go if you only let him know what you want of him. She lets him know all right enough. She allows the horse to rest ence in a while of course—not long at a time, but, then when we consider that she always stays for that purpose at the intersection of two narrow streets and right across the car track, perhaps it is long enough. Then she always drives fast e to make up the lost time. She's doing it She the steam fire engine get out of her way. There goes the wheel off a hose-cart—those hose-carts can't stand everything. A SERIOUS ACCIDENT. Willie Kean Has His Foot Severely Torn by

A serious accident occurred about 6 o'clock vesterday afternoon at the meeting point on the street car line this side of Grant's park. A umber of street cars, filled with people, coming into the city, stopped on the siding, taking up nearly all the track from end to end. Willie Kean was standing on the rear steps of the last car, which was crowded. When the outgoing cars arrived at the meet-ing point, the one in front, driven by a man named Wallace, went thundering by the last named Wallace, went thundering by the last car on the other track, almost grazing it. Willie Kean's right foot, which was hanging at the side of the steps, was caught by the rushing car and badly mangled. His shoe was twisted off and the leaders of the foot were torn. He was brought to the city on the seven o'clock car and placed in a placeton and carried to his home at the corner of Ellis and Courtland. Medical aid was summened and an examination showed that while or Enis and courtiand. Medical and was summoned and an examination showed that while the foot is seriously injured it will not necessarily have to be amputated.

Willie Kean is a worthy hard-working boy. He is about fifteen and is employed on the Journal. He suffered intensely.

A Correction. In Saturday's account of the fourth grade.

Ivy street school, Willie Barris's name was by some oversight left off the roll of honor. Willie leaves this grade with an unusually fine record having made 95.9 in yearly average besides leaving on the black boards a handsome map of the hemispheres in colors, which has, on account of its beauty, attracted much attention.

To Our Patrons and the Public Generally We, the undersigned, beg leave by this mathod to call your attention to the fact, that we have, after much careful thought, and consultation among ourselves, unanimously agreed and decided that we will, on and after the first day of July next, abolish the credit system. The reasons for this ac abolish the credit system. The reasons for this action we hope to make plain and satisfactory, in this, our address:

In the first place, many of us are, (and in fact nearly all) limited in capital, and unless we resort to this method we must entirely abandon the business. Cur merchandise, from custom (which allows). to this method we must entirely abandon the business. Curr merchandise, from custom (which always makes a stringent law) is not purchasable only for cash. Now, from this one fact, you can at once see, that in trying to run a business with all these uncertainties, such as had det to come the comment of the comment is of small margin, and takes constant and vigilant effort on our part, the very best can be done, to bring it above original outlay.

We could go further and produce many more sufficient a sons for this action, but deem it unnecessary, as we think the foregoing amply sufficient, and hope entirely satisfactory.

In closing this address, we would respectfully ask the public to view it from a business stand-point, and be assured that we have made this move not hastily, but patiently, and with much consideration, and are firmly of the belief that it is not only to our advantage a d good, but will also be of vast benesit to our patrons.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

The Preachers, and What They Preached Yesterday.

Strickler's Strong Argument - Dr. Barrett's Eloquent Words-Dr. Harris and Others at their Best.

It was an ideal mid-summer Sabbath. The heat was not so intense as to deter church-goers from attending the service in the various houses of worship, consequently the ongregations were large, as usual.

The preachers were at their best and some able sermons were preached.

St. Luke's Cathedral. Notwitstanding the summer weather, the congregation was large. Mr. R. D. Toy sang a beau tiful solo. The dean, Rev. R. S. Barrett, officiated. It is only by a recent change of the cathedral law that the priest in charge has the official title o "dean." 'The sermon was the first of a series upon the "Prodigal Son." The entering wedge of his ruin was a wish—a wish for unhallowed freedom, a wish for what is only God's—absolute independence This was the prodigal's sin. It is the sin of a prodi gal and wayward world—this claiming legal right to selfish, unrestrained, irresponsible use of God's loans-life, time, intellect, culture, beauty, wealt Men crave to be gods. But i ence of God does not make them gods, them devils. It made the first devils. The sons of God wanted to be free, and the Father let them go, and they left the heavenly home, wander ers and prodigals forever. The service of God is the most perfect freedom. It affords the wides aptitude of range, wide enough for the beldess wing to lig. Its very limitations are intended for protection gainst other bondages that are cruel and protection against other bondages that are cruel and rainous.

The prodigal s n left the paternal roof, and his feet were winged by a sense of irresponsibily. The broad road was faagrant with the fair flowers of sin, not yet come to ruit. The far country was quickly reached. There he used life as a harvest instead of a seed time. He wasted the soul's endowments, which, well used, may make eternity rich. He spent all. He became destitute, hungry, famine-stricken. He, whose ruing passion was liberty; he, whose besetting sin was a craving for absolute independence, now became a slave. He joined himself of a citizen of that country. The citizens of that country are devils. Men, however, bad, are only sojourners. Their home is God. The citizen sent the prodigal to feed swine: No man gave unto him. The recipicate of his substance stood a far off. He came to himself, and sald how it was. He had changed massiers, homes, companions. In the place of his father he had a tyrant for a master. In stead of comfort and peace, he had a desert for a home. In place of loved ones, he had swine for companions. His steps downward had been gradual, but lower and lower. Here are his successive steps to ruin:

1. Self-assertion.

recessive steps to ruin: Self-assertion. Prodigality. Emptiness.

The Central Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Strickler preached an unusually interesting sermon at the Central Presbyterian church yesterday morning from the lith chapter of Mathew, 23th to 30th verses: "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest.

Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek an I lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden I suppose there is no one present that to a greater

I suppose there is no one present that to a greate or less degree, but desire to have this rest. Ther are none but what are under some burden, the bur-den of affliction, bereavement, sorrow, the burde of fear, sin and guilt. There is not one present wh is not laboring under some such burden, and nonof fear, sin and guilt. There is not one present whe is not laboring under some such burden, and non-but what desire some such burden, and non-but what desire some such 'relief; and receiving such relief would have occasion to sing for joy. Many persons, however, and many Christians there are to whom it has never occurred, that this relief is possible here, and do not expect this relief here, but expect it in the future world Many there are who seek relief from their burdens but the only energy of the from these burdens is through our Savior, for he says, "Come unto me aliye tha labor and are heavy laden." He makes no exceptions as to persons or the nature of the burden, but He will relieve you of your burdens—will do it now—not in the fature. Now surely, if there is any passage in the Beriptures that ought to arrest our attention or one for us to study, it is this.

First, if we obtain this rest, we must go to Christ; but the majority of men seel this rest in some other way—chang of plece; change of pursuits; think if they could only sun round themselves with different comforts from what they have, that they could find rest. Some seek universe that can save us from these burdens; nothing that can say, "Come unto me all ye that halon and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Philosophy cannot say it; the Lord Jesus Christaiona can say it, and even before the beginning of the universe he said it even commits himself to the promise to bestow this blessing upon all who come unto him. The christian testifies to the truth of this promise, for they have found it. Then the thing we ought to do to obtain this rest is to go to the Lord Jesus Christ.

Second. We must take his yoke upon us, come under his control, his authority, to obtain this rest. He does not propose to give us this rest by loosing us from his control, his authority, but by our taking his yoke upon us, and taking upon us his yoke, what government would be exercise over usf. Ho would break down the government under which we now live and build up within us a government of truth and honesity, destroy the old government and establish a new one and thus give us that rest, must it not have a now-erful tendency to give us rest, by taking us from under an evil government, and putting us under his government. If we go to the Lord Jesus Christ, He will give us this rest, overturning all that you now rest under.

Those who go to Christ, and take up this yoke, must also, learn of him, for he says "I am meek and lowly in heart." and if you go te Christ and learn and learn of Him, you will find rest.

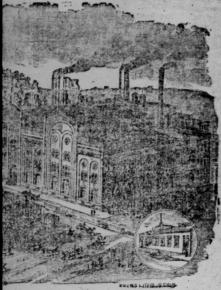

One burden under which we all rest, is the burden of affliction, for who is it that has not suffered thus, as he says, "every heart knoweth its own bitte ness." If we realize as He teaches, that these afflictions are necessary to us, to give us this rest, that they are for our benefit here and hereafter, that they are for our benefit here and hereafter, that they are for our benefit here and hereafter, that they are for our benefit here and hereafter, that they are for our benefit here and hereafter, that they are for our benefit here and hereafter, that they are for our benefit here and hereafte secure this rest it is our own fault, not his. Thus, as he gives us rost from these adilectious so will He of all others, I will mention one other burden, the burden of sin though they te as the sand upon the seashore and as red as scarlet. He will give us rest from them, the will take them all away and raise us up in honor and take ail fear away. He will releve us from the consequences of sin, and we will secure the "peace of God, which passeth all understanding." He invites us himself to bestow upon us these great blessings. He encourages us to come to him, by telling us that He is "meek and lowly in heart." He means He will not meet us with the reception we deserve. He will not meet us with the reception we deserve. He will say tous. Why? have you brought all these burdens upon yourself? He will not be cold in His reception, but He will receive us as though it were a great favor bestowed upon Him. Look at the picture of the prodigal son-thus will the Lord Jesus Christ receive us, if we go to Him. He will show His Joy in the presence of the angels. Over one sinner that repenteth, the great God Himself will rejoice in the presence of His angels. The encouragement He gives us to go to Him is that His yoke is easy. If we submit to His yoke while in our carnal nature, it would be onerous and heavy. How can Christ make it easy? He will take away this nature and give us a new nature; make His way our way. If you take this yoke upon you it requires only what reason and affection requires of you, for you will by it obtain the highest trust and the noblest liberty. It is in seeking his kingdom, duty of "pressing toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

The duties imposed upon us make men hesitate to consecrate themselves to Christ, but when we do consecrate ourselves, he makes the burden light by his love for us and streugthens us to bear His burdens, and in His love the burden casses to be a burden.

Paul says, I can do all things, not boastfully does he say it, I can do all things,

The recipients of his substance stood a far off. He came to himself, and said how it was. He had changed masters, homes, companions. In the place of his father he had a tyrant for a master. In stead of comfort and peace, he had a desert for a home. In place of loved ones, he had swine for companions. His steps downward had been gradual, but lower and lower. Here are his successive steps to ruin:

1. Self-assertion.

2. Separation.

Growing distance.
The far away country.
Self-indulgence.
Proligality.
Emptiness.

11. Degradation.
12. Despair.
At every step we have enforced upon us the truth that the yoke of Carist is easier than the yoke of Stan: that the service of God is lighter than the service of sin, and that self-denial is easier than

The Central Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Strickler preached an unusually interesting sermon at the Central Presbyterian church vesterday morning from the 11th chapter of Mat thew, 23th to 30th verses: "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek an i lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden

I suppose there is no one present that to a greater or less degree, but desire to have this rest. There or less degree, but desire to have this rest. There are none but what are under some burden, the burden of affliction, bereavement, sorrow, the burden of fear, sin and guilt. There is not one present who is not laboring under some such burden, and none but what desire some such relief; and receiving such relief would have occasion to sing for joy. Many persons, however, and many Christians there are to whom it has never occurred, that this relief is possible here, and do not expect this relief here, but expect it in the future world. Many there are who seek relief from their burdens, but the only a tef from these burdens is through our Savior, for he says, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden." He makes no exceptions as to persons or the mature of the burden, but He will relieve you of your burdens—will do it now—not in the future. Now surely, if there is any passage in the Beriptures that ought to arrest our attention or one for us to study, it is this.

First. If we obtain this rest, we must go to attention or one for us to study, it is this.

First. If we obtain this rest, we must go to Christ; but the majority of men seek this rest in some other way—change of pleee; change of pursuits; think if they could only change their circumstances; could only surround themselves with different comforts from what they have, that they could find rest. Some seek it in the study of the sciences, some in religious rites and corposules. All the activity which we see conthey have, that they could find rest. Some seek it in the study of the sciences, some in religious rites and ceremonies. All the activity which we see control men is only the seeking to get rid of some burden, and in getting rid of some burden in this way they get others equally as great in the place. The simple fact is that there is no place in this whole universe that can save us from these burdens; nothing that can say. 'Come unto me ally et hat labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.' Philosophy cannot say it; the Lord Jesus Christalone can say it, and even before the beginning of the universe he said it even commits himself to the promise to bestow this blessing upon all who come unto him. The Christian testifies to the truth of this promise, for they have found it. Then the thing we ought to do to obtain this rest is to go to the Lord Jesus Christ,

Second. We must take his yoke upon us, come under his control, his authority, but by our taking his yoke upon us, and taking upon us his yoke, what government would he exercise over us? He would break down the government under which we now live and build up within us a government of truth and honesty, destroy the old government and establish a new one and thus give us that rest, must it not have a now-crul tendency to give us rest, by taking us from under an evil government, and putting us under his government. If we go to the Lord Jesus Christ, He will give us this rest, overturning all that you now rest under.

Those who go to Christ, and take up this yoke, erful tendency to give us rest, by taking us from under an evil government. If we go to the Lord Jesus Christ, He will give us this rest, overturning all that you now rost under.

Those who go to Christ, and take up this yoke, must also, learn of him, for he says "I am meek and lowly in heart." and it you go te Christ and learn and learn of Him, you will find rest.

One burden under which we all rest, is the burden of affliction, for who is it thas has not suffered thus, as he says, "every heart knoweth its own bitte ness." If we realize as He teaches, that these afflictions are necessary to us, to give us this rest, that they are for our benefit here and hereafter, that they are for our benefit here and hereafter, that they are for our benefit here allow ourselves to be controlled by such teachings, ought we not to be well satisfied, and if we go to the Lord Jesus Christ we will find that these are his teaching and that he will give us grace and strength to bear up under them. If we allow ourselves to be controlled by such teachings, ought we not to be well satisfied, and if we go to the Lord Jesus Christ we will find that these are his teaching and that he will give us grace and strength to bear up under all afficitions, and will we not have rest if he tells us that these afflictions are best for us, and we will secure this rest if we yield to him. One speaking of this rest said that if God took away one blessing he came injand filled up the place, and thus he seakred his rest. If we do not secure this rest it is our own fault, not his. Thus, as he gives us rost from these afflictions so will He of all others, I will mention one other burden, the burden of sin, though they ic as the sand upon the seashore and as red as scarlet, He will give us rest from them. He will take them all away and raise us up in honor and take all fear away. He will relieve us from the consequences of sin, and we will secure the "peace of God, which passeth all understanding." He invites us himself to bestow upon us these great bless

He makes the burden light in His love for us and strengthens us to bear His burdens, and in His love the burden ceases to be a burden.

Faul says, I can do all things, not boastfully does be say it, I can do all things, not boastfully does he say it, I can do all things through Christ, that strengthens me, bear all privations and persecutions, thus can we be able to bear cut burdens through the strength that Christ gives us. Now shall we not go to Christ; we all have our burdens and when he says come unto me, shall we not go. He will relieve us from all suffering. Christ is ready to give us this rest.

My does tallow strenge of words and this rest.

and soberness. Will you not come? It will ministe to you so much peace and so much joy.

At Other Churches. The other places of worship contained good congregations and the customary services were held.

held.

Dr. T. Harris, preached a powerful sermon in the morning in the Hunter street church of Christ. His subject was: "Who is greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven?" In the evening le discoursed about "Humility." Both somons were heard by attentive congregations. Dr. Hurris has few equals in the south as a pulpit orator.

The second Baptist church contained very large congregations both morning and night. The sermons were the last which Dr. Molonaid will preach for several months. At the conclusion of the night service a considerable number of persons were the last which Dr. Molonaid will preach for several months. At the conclusion of the night service a considerable number of persons were displaced.

THE EDDLEMAN CASE.

Will the Case be Tried?-To be Called Today in Judge Clark's Court.

for Judge Clark's Court.

Few murder trials have ever caused as much public interest in Atlanta as the Eddleman case is exciting.

This morning when Judge Richard H. Clark calls his court to order he will read from the docket: "The case of George Eddleman, indicted for the murder of Thomas Gresham," and will then ask: "Gentlemen, are you ready to proceed?"

"The State is ready, your honor," will be the quick reply of Solicitor-General Charlie Hill.

Hill.
What answer will the defendant's counsel

What answer will the defendant's counsel make?

They will say they are not ready, and will ask the court to continue the case until the next term of court. They will use this request upon the ground that Colonel Rube Arnold, the senior counsel for the defense, is ill, and that his associates are not willing to proceed in his absence. Colonel Arnold has been very sick and is now at the springs seeking a restration of health. It will be impossible for him to appear in court for several weeks. This fact will be brought to the court's attention, and a continuance will be insisted upon.

Will the court grant it?

Solicitor-General Hill thinks the reason assigned is not a valid one; that the absence of one of the lawyers for the defense should not retard the movements of the court and should not cause the postponement of so important a case. He will insist upon a speedy trial, and he contidently expects Judge Clark to refuse the motion for a continuance.

It is likely that it will be a very difficult matter to get a jury. The panels will probably be exhausted before twelve men can be secured to try the case. The killing has excited so much talk in Atlanta that nine out of ten citizens have had something to say about it. The trial will certainly be a protracted one, in any event, and it will be brimfull of exciting points.

ACQUITTED OF THE CHARGE. A Young Man Arrested Without Law or

A Young Man Arrested Without Law or Warrant.

Recently Mr. A. C. Keiley, of Macon, was arrested in Atlanta on a tolegram from Macon, from T. C. Parker. The trial developed the fact that the arrest was altogether without werrant. Mr. Keily's lawyers, Messrs. Dessau & Bartlett, furnish this statement:

Macon, Ga., June 22, 1888.—Mr. A. C. Keily, who was charged with lareony after a trust by T. C. Parker, for an alleged shortage in his accounts, was tried before the magistrate on yesterday, We represented him. The prosecution failed to make out acase, but the magistrate stated while he was satisfied there could be no conviction, as his duity was litied, he would not assume the responsibility of entierly dismissing the warrant, but would simply require the defenant to give his own recognizance to answer any indictment the grand jury might find, if they should find one. We are satisfied that Mr. Keily has not been guilty of any violation of the law, and that the grand jury will not find any bill.

DIED OF APOPLEXY.

The Particulars of Mr. W. H. Parsons's Sudden Death.

Stricken Down Without the Slightest Warn ing-Mr. Simpson Describes How It Happened.

At 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning a special train came in on the Western and Atlantic railroad from Marietta. This train brought the mortal remains of Mr. W. H. Parsons, whose death occurred at 8 o'clock the morning before. before. Accompaning the body were Captain Henry Jackson, Colonel Renfroe, Mr. Henry Harris, Mr. O. F. Simpson, Mr. Charles Swift, of Atlanta, and Mr. E. K. Hodgson, of Atlanta.

The body was, upon the arrival of the train, taken in charge by Mr. Charles Swift and conveyed to his undertaker's establishment. Subsequently it was removed to the residence of the deceased, corner of Mitchel street and

The story of the sudden death, as told briefly in yesterday's Constitution, carried sorrow into many households where Mr. Parsons was in yesterday's Constitution, carried sorrow into many households where Mr. Parsons was beloved.

During the day the residence was visited by many friends of the family who came to offer condolence. The body lay in a coffin in the front room. The expression of the face was placid and life-like.

Mr. O. F. Simpson was with Mr. Parsons when he died and he gives this account of the dreadful event: "It was decided some time ago by Mr. E. R. Hodgson and Mr. Charlie Griffith, of Athens, to get up a little party to go to the mountains and enjoy trout fishing for a week or ten days. Mr. Hodgson was a classmate of Mr. Parsons and they were intimate friends. The party was made up as a compliment to Mr. Parsons and he was the guest. Last Tuesday morning Mr. Parsons, myself and little John Speer left Atlanta for Gainesville. There we met Mr. Hodgson and Mr. Griffith, who were equipped with a complete tenting outfit. We proceeded by private conveyance to Dahlonega, where we were joined by the other member of the party, Captain Hodgson. It was expected that Mrs. Hodgson would accompany us, but for some reason she did not go. We left Dahlonega and went through Cooper's gap into Fannin county. We pitched our tents near the banks of a mountain stream and prepared to whip the brooks for trout. This was Thursday. I was with Mr. Parsons most of the time. We shared the same tent. Friday we spent in fishing and had great success. Saturday morning early we prepared for another day's sport. After eating breakfast we started up the stream with our fishing rods. Some of our party had preceded us. I was following a mountaineer, who acted as our guide, and behind me walked Mr. Parsons, and another gentleman brought up the rear. We were single file, ascending the gentle all and another gentleman brought up the rear.

us. I was following a mountaineer, who acted as our guide, and behind me walked Mr. Parsons, and another gentleman brought up the rear. We were single file, ascending the gentle slope of a mountain. As we walked we chatted pleasantly. I suppose we had gone something over a mile and a half in this way. Mr. Parsons had made a remark about the clouds clearing away, and he said he expected good sport. I heard a noise, as if something had fallen, and at once turned to see what had happened. Mr. Parsons was lying upon the ground, his head being several feet higher than the rest of his body. He was lying on his side. When I reached him, which was in a few seconds, I hastily loosened him over on his back. He gave one gasp, and I qu'ckly feared that he had been attacked by apoplexy. The mountaineer I dispatched to the creek for a hat of water, and I dampened his face with the dew from a bunch of leaves. All this time he showed not the faintest signs of life. I felt his pulse, and placed one hand over his heart, but failed to detect the slightest pulsation. I feared he had expired. After he felt till he died he gave only four gasps. Death must have come as swiftly as a lightning bolt. He died a painless death. Of course it was a fearful shock to me. Without a moment's delay I hurried off the two mountaineers—J. E. Newberry and William bolt. He died a painless death. Of course it was a fearful shock to me. Without a moment's delay I hurried off the two mountaineers—J. E. Newberry and William Watkins—sending one back to camp and the other up the stream for members of our party who had preceded us. It was at least two hours before they returned. Lieutenant Hodgson quickly constructed a litter and it proved effective. On this stretcher we placed the dead body and it remained upon it till it was carried to Swift's undertaker's place. The stretcher was placed in a wagon and taken to Elijay, Mr. Hodgson and Mr. Griffith remaining with it all the time. They and the others did everything possible in the emergency. I hastened to Elijay in advance, so that I could communicate with parties in Atlanta. I reached there shortly after 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and immediately sent telegraphic dispatches to Dr. A. W. Calhoun, Captain Harry Jackson and Mr. Frank E. Block, telling them briefly of the sudden death of Mr. Parsons, which I should say took place a few minutes before 8 o'clock, I received no answer to these telegrams. I expected to wire the details had I got a message, but none came, so all I could do was to try and make arrangements to get the body to Atlanta a soon as possible. I communicated with the officials of the North Georgia railroad, and succeded in getting a train to come from Jasper to Elijay. But for this the remains lanta as soon as possible. I communicated with the officials of the North Georgia railroad, and succeded in getting a train to come from Jasper to Elijay. But for this the remains could not have been brought to Atlanta till today. The body reached Elijay last night, and soon after we came down to Marietta with it and met the party from Atlanta. We reached the city this morning. The other members of the party disbanded; they were too greatly shocked to think of continuing the camp. It was to me a severe shock, and I shall not soon recover from it. Mr. Parsons had been with me on many similar expeditions. He was a charming companion in camp. He was the life of the crowd; was full of resource, and never shirked any duty, but was always ready to do his part. He was in all respects one of the most lovable men I ever knew."

Dr. Redwine made an examination of the body soon after it arrived. His verdict was that apoplexy undoubtedly caused death. He said: "Some have expressed the belief that it was heart disease, but I am convinced that it was heart disease, but I am convinced that it was apoplexy. Had it been heart disease there would have been premonitions showing that the organ was affected. But in cases of sudden death from apoplexy there are no premonitory signs. The blow is as sudden and as deadly as a bullet piercing the brain. Apoplexy stacks persons of full, labit who are in perfect health. In fact it may be said that an excess of health sometimes causes shees apoplectic strokes."

AFRIEND'S TRIBUTE.

Mr. Walter Gregory says of Mr. Parsons:

"When he knew I was a stranger here, his big heart opened to me, and I could see him trying to make me feel at home. So well did he succeed, that I said to him recently: 'Mr. Parsons, if all men were as generous in their thoughts and as kind in their actions, this world would be delightful.' He reminded me of that saying, 'Feremost among agreeable sensations are those which reconcile us to life and humanity.'

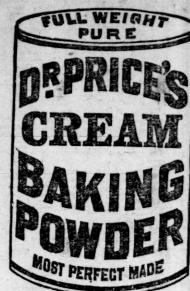

"He was a happy compound of dignity and cordiality, and his chief charm was a manly suavity. It was not assumed, but was the simple expression of genuine feeling. In his comments upon others, he was gentle and charitable. In speaking of religion, he was reverential. In dealing with men, he was frank and pleasant. In the presence of women, he was courtly and respectful. His gentler qualities revealed and ornamented his higher and nobler ones. I knew him so well, and admired him so much, that I feel a personal loss. I almost felt like he was an elder brother—and at rue one."

Nominated by the Chicago Convention.

MORTON FOR SECOND PLACE

Very Little Enthusiasm Among Republicans.

DEMOCRATS ARE JUBILANT

And Think They Will Have an Easy Victory.

CHICAGO, June 25.—[Special.]—Cleveland and Thurman versus Harrison and Morton. Tariff reform versus protection. Could anything be more assured than the success of the democratic party in the coming campaign? The victory may even be said to have already been won before the battle is fought. Harrison was nominated on the eighth ballot, but it was an accident. The Indianians played their cards well, and Harrison was rushed their cards well, and Harrison was rushed through before the convention knew what it was doing.. When it became evident that he had received the requisite number of votes for the nomination, a blank expression was visible upon the faces of nearly every delegation in the hall, save that of Indiana. The Indian-

GENERAL HARRISON ians sent up a hearty cheer. The other dele-gations then realized their position and joined in the applause. It couldn't be termed enthuskesm; it was short and mild and it was evident to the vast audience that it was forced. The faces of the Ohioans and Michigando betraved their feelings. They were not or disa; pointed because their favorites had failed but because they knew only too well that the convention had selected a man who stood-

NO CHANCE WHATEVER OF ELECTION when pitted against such a pair as Cleveland and the old Roman. The surprise of these two delegations was so great that they even for to rise from their chairs and join in the yell of enthusiasm. Their action in not risi was noticeable to every one, and every boraker's speech seconding the motion to colliterate that fact from the minds of those

However, all had to accept it, and faces bear

However, all had to accept it, and faces bearing evidence of forced pleasure are to be seen everywhere tonight. They are now determined to make the best of a bad bargain, and will use every effort to push the heavy load the party has placed in front of itself to victory. But they had just as well combine with the democratic party to make Cleveland's election unanimous, for it is utterly impossible for the republican party to elect a man who has voted a dozen times or more in favor of UNRESTRICTED CHINESE IMMIGRATION.

California, Oregon and Nevada will cast their electoral votes for Grover Cleveland and Allen G. Thurman beyond a question of doubt, and if is hardly reasonable to suppose that the workingmen of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut can vote for a man whose record is so unclean upon the Chinese question as that of Harrison. His speech, in which he said if the United States was going to restrict Chinese immigration, they ought to restrict Chinese immigration, they ought to restrict the Irish, has already driven another nail in his political coffin, and it is the opinion of many that have expressed themselves today, that even the republican leaders and politicians have not much hopes of success after the mistake they made today, not withstanding the very confident speeches made in seconding the motion to make the nomination unanimous.

The nomination of Levi P. Morton for the vice-presidency, is not to be compared to that of Harrison for the presidency. While there was practically no enthusiasm, whatever, for Harrison, the

was practically no enhushasm, whatever, for Harrison, the CHEERS AND APPLIUSE FOR MORTON were simply wild. Hardly had Warner Miller taken the stand to nominate him before the enthusiasm of the entire audience was aroused and before he completed almost the entire audience arose to their feet and cheered wildly for some minutes. When the vote was announced, it having been almost unanimous, it was greeted with another cheer and it was evident the delegates believed they had not made another mistake in their choice for the vice-presider cy. They knew only too well that the nomination of Morton was the only chance they had of even partially retrieving the great mistake made in the nomination of Harrison. Morton is undoubtedly considered the strongest man on the ticket, but it is evident to every one that the head of a ticket will carry more than the tail of another in any state.

THE DEMOCRACY JUBILANT. THE DEMOCRACY DEBASES.

Chicago is in pessession of the democrat party tonight. Republicans are thorough disgusted with themselves over their fatal make in nominating Harrison, and many habeen heard tonight to admit the ticket can win. Democrats are parading the streets wired bandanas and carrying banners, on white are inscribed: "Harrison and Morton; from the street of the str whisky and Chinese."

Republicans recognize this as only too true, and are leaving the city as rapidly as possible, the most thoroughly disgusted party in the world. Bets have been freely offered by democrats around the hotels touight, but no takers have been found.

HARRISON AND MORTON.

Detailed Proceedings of the Convention-CHICAGO, June 25.—At three minutes past 11 o'clock the convention was called to order by Chairman Estee, who was again in good voice.
